

45 NEW WARSHIPS ORDERED BY NAVY IN BIGGEST CONTRACT OF ITS HISTORY

Hungary Goes on War Basis in Balkan Crisis

Germany Sends Bombing Planes To Rumania

Carol Drops Allied Pact; Hungarians' Entry Into Transylvania Looms.

By The Associated Press.
Hungary went on a full-fledged war basis last night and peace in the tense Balkans appeared near an end.

The harried Rumanian cabinet, already beset by reported clashes between Rumanian and Russian soldiers in Rumania's withdrawal from Bessarabia and northern Bucovina, gave up the last vestige of an alliance with Britain and France and renounced the Allied pact guaranteeing Rumanian territory.

Agreed upon in April, 1939, this pact represented a British-French effort to build up alliances in eastern Europe that would call a halt to Germany. Repudiating it, King Carol furthered his hope of Axis aid.

A fleet of German bombing planes, which Bucharest military circles said Rumania purchased from Germany, landed last night at the Brasov military airport in the Transylvania province of Rumania.

Delivery of the bombers at this time was held significant in Bucharest, where the Rumanian government has redoubled defense preparations in southern Dobruja, wanted by Bulgaria, and Transylvania, claimed by Hungary.

Tass, official Soviet news agency, reported that Russian troops have established themselves all along the new frontiers and had "accomplished their task."

A radio report picked up in London from Lousanne said Russian warships had entered Rumanian waters.

Bombers Kill 11 Britons.
In the west, the struggle between Britain and Germany went on unceasingly. German bombers, the British said, killed 11 persons and injured a score when they dropped bombs on a row of houses in a northeast Scottish town.

British bombers also struck at Germany and said they set storage tanks ablaze in Hamburg as well as bombing other military objectives.

The match which seemed about to set fire to the long-smouldering controversy between Rumania and Hungary was a Hungarian report of "incidents" on their border in which three civilians were reported killed. But the trouble stems back to Hungary's long desire to reclaim rich Transylvania, lost to Rumania in the World War crack-up of the Austro-Hungary empire.

Axis Powers Seek Peace.
Responsible quarters said the Axis powers were continuing efforts to bring about peace but no success was apparent.

Hungary's entry into Transylvania—Rumania's largest province in territory with 24,020 square miles, and second largest in population, with 3,414,492 in 1937—appeared imminent.

Although overshadowed somewhat by the developments on Rumania's northwest frontier, Russia's occupation of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina went forward at a faster pace. The Russian army was said to be "raining" parachute troops on previously unoccupied parts of the two provinces.

British Islands Seized.
Germany announced the occupation of the Channel Islands of Guernsey and Jersey—the Nazis' first foothold on British soil—and the British reported further successful raids on military objectives in Germany.

The two British islands in the channel, famous for their fine cattle, were declared demilitarized by the British last week, before the Germans took them over.

The British told the world that they would not allow an enemy to occupy the French-mandated territories of Syria and Lebanon in the Near East or to use those lands as bases for attacks on neighboring countries. Britain is pledged to defend—Turkey, Egypt, Palestine, Transjordan and Iraq.

Pan-American Army Sought By LaGuardia

New York Mayor Says Move Would Impress Dictators.

NEW YORK, July 1.—(UP)—Formation of a Pan-American army, navy and air force to guard the western hemisphere was proposed today by Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia as the best way "to impress the dictators."

Speaking at the World's Fair in connection with the observation of Canada Day, the mayor recommended a Pan-American West Point and Annapolis for training cadets from all countries in North and South America.

"We cannot trust to treaties," he said. "We cannot depend on promises. For with the example of Holland, Denmark, Czechoslovakia and Poland, we know, as they say in the language of diplomacy, that we would be double-crossed."

LaGuardia cautioned that "in bringing about the unity of the western hemisphere we must take care that none of the mistakes of Europe are repeated. . . . Every country must be recognized as an equal member of the family of western nations, regardless of its size, population or wealth."

"We want to develop a Pan-American philosophy of life," he said. "Territorial defense of the western hemisphere should not be left to any one country. We should all participate in proportion to our strength for its common defense. We of the Americas fear no one anywhere, any time."

M. L. Annenberg Is Sentenced To 3 Years for Evading Taxes

CHICAGO, July 1.—(AP)—M. L. Annenberg, who climbed from immigrant newsboy to one of America's wealthiest men, today was sentenced to three years' imprisonment for evading $1,217,296 in federal taxes on his 1936 income.

Sentence was imposed on the 63-year-old former racing news magnate by Judge James H. Wilkerson in a courtroom packed to capacity.

The judge declared in an 11-page statement that Annenberg's age and the fact that he had pleaded guilty to one count of an indictment, removing the expense of a trial, had been taken into consideration.

Joseph E. Hafner, Annenberg's chief bookkeeper who pleaded guilty to aiding and abetting the evasion, was sentenced to five months in the county jail.

In the civil phase of the case, Annenberg agreed to settle his estimated $12,000,000 debt to Uncle Sam for $8,000,000, a sum which may grow to $10,000,000 when interest and penalties are calculated.

Glenn Charges 'Chicanery' In Bond Decision

Council Approves School Issue But Defers Hospital Request.

City council yesterday paved the way for a $1,550,000 school bond election, but deferred action on a proposed $2,000,000 issue for Grady hospital—bringing from T. K. Glenn, chairman of the hospital's board of trustees, a charge of "political chicanery."

Also referred to the finance committee with the proposed hospital bond, were other projects totaling nearly a million dollars. A meeting to consider these measures is set for 2:30 this afternoon.

Action of the councilmanic group in deferring the issue was taken after proponents of the school bonds argued that passing of the total sum might entail increased taxes.

Glenn, however, in a statement to The Constitution last night, charged the hospital issue was defeated because "eight councilmen had previously pledged themselves not to vote for it."

Their pledge was given, he asserted, to citizens of the second ward, who sought a new building at the Murphy Junior High school.

"As a consequence," Glenn declared, "at a recent meeting they pledged eight councilmen to vote only for the school issue, because other bonds might imperil their school."

"If that's the way they want to do business, I can say now that we're going to make an issue of it. I'm for the schools, but not for the schools to the exclusion of all other projects in the city."

"If the residents of this area do not see fit to revoke the pledge extracted from those eight councilmen, we might consider it our duty to get every doctor and businessman in the city behind us and present the matter fairly to the people."

In deferring action on the Grady issue, the councilmen also delayed a $200,000 bond proposal for the fire department. Council also referred to the finance committee proposals for nearly $1,000,000 in other improvements, not yet passed by the finance group.

Included among those projects was a proposal for the expenditure of a large amount for an extensive traffic improvement program. Frank H. Neely, member of the Fulton county zoning and planning commission, urged the traffic improvements.

(Text of Frank H. Neely's letter on the traffic problem on Page 11.)

WOMEN VOTERS took along their knitting, their cigarettes, their enthusiasm to the city council meeting yesterday to brush up on their knowledge of the city's government. Mrs. Curtis Dawes, left, chooses to knit while Miss Christine Smith, Mrs. Edgar Watkins Jr., and Mrs. Charles R. Liebman talk over the activities of the meeting. "I'm coming again," was their unanimous chorus as they left after a long session.

Abit Nix Quits Job as Regents' Board Member

Governor Rivers Appoints Earl B. Braswell To Succeed Him.

Abit Nix said in Athens yesterday he has resigned from the board of regents of the University of Georgia System.

Governor Rivers immediately announced that Earl B. Braswell, publisher of the Athens Banner-Herald, had been named to succeed him.

In a letter to the Governor dated June 29, Nix declared: "Dear Governor Rivers: I have always held very positive views, which are well known to Georgians, as to the importance of divorce of politics from government. It is, therefore, in accordance with such convictions that I hereby tender my resignation as a member of the board of regents of the University of Georgia System."

Indicating he will adopt an independent course in his campaign for governor, Nix said in the letter: "It is my firm intention to discuss, in a spirit of fairness but with the candor and forthrightness to which I believe the people are entitled, the principles of government to which I have adhered in a restricted sphere of public service which I now seek an opportunity to apply on a larger scale."

Weymouth Kirkland, Annenberg's chief counsel, announced he would file a petition for suspension of the sentence and ask 30 days' stay of execution while it was being considered.

William J. Campbell, United States district attorney, objected to the length of the proposed stay, but said he would agree to one of reasonable length. The court stayed execution in both the Annenberg and Hafner cases for 20 days.

The court said it would rule on the suspended sentence before the 20 days had expired.

Annenberg remained free pending the ruling. His original $100,000 bond was allowed to stand and he walked out of the courthouse without making a statement.

Annenberg, defendant in the largest individual criminal tax case in government history, was not fined. His plea of guilty made him liable to a maximum of five years' imprisonment and a fine of $10,000.

Women Voters Knit and Learn While Seeing Council in Action

Visitors Talk Much But Miss Little; Declare Session Fascinating; Say They Wish To Attend Later Meetings.

(Carolyn McKenzie, The Constitution's girl reporter, takes her camera and memo pads along each day into the highways and byways of Atlanta to garner from prominent and remote spaces her news stories for the day. Yesterday she went with leaders of the Atlanta League of Women Voters to attend a meeting of the city council. In the following article, and the accompanying pictures which she made, Carolyn tells of her and the voters' reactions to a day with the council.)

By CAROLYN MCKENZIE.

Women voters took along their cigarettes, their knitting, their enthusiasm to the city hall yesterday to brush up on their knowledge of the city government.

These leaguers of the Atlanta League of Women Voters were keyed up to the last notch as councilmen and aldermen marched nonchalantly into their habitual seats. Old-timers among the group leaned forward in their seats, stretched their index fingers, craned their necks as they tried to show fellow on-lookers just what's what at council meeting—and who's who.

They marched into the council room almost a half-hour before the officials arrived, but they wanted to get front seats and hear everything which took place.

Firmly, comfortably situated on the front row, these women grew excited as time approached for the meeting. They chatted freely with friends, turning in their seats when necessary. They were almost as excited as young children at a circus, and the frequent visitors to council among the group took great pride in telling their fellow members just what they were about to see.

During the meeting, they pulled out long cigaret-holders, smoked leisurely, sat and listened attentively. Some brought their knitting; but they all kept their minds on the meeting.

When their visit was completed, the council meeting adjourned, they went away declaring: "I'm coming again."

They were impressed, the ones who had been long years ago, by the simplicity of the city government as contrasted with the complicated meetings when 30-odd men met to decide the fate of the city—in a measure.

Find "Fascination."

The found the session "fascinating." "It makes newspaper reading more interesting; makes activities of the council more understandable; makes the men, instead of printed names, personages," they surmised.

For years the board members have expounded the idea that more citizens should attend the meetings of city and county governments, and see these public officials in action.

So they went yesterday—the whole board in a group.

They saw the men in action, and with their desire to understand government and receive an education in citizenship, they sat with their cigarettes and knitting, but mostly with their minds intent on learning the inside workings of the city council.

Two Big Audiences Hear Dr. Truett

Dr. George W. Truett, of Dallas, Texas, internationally famous minister, yesterday told two large Atlanta audiences "Religion is the determining factor in our civilization." He spoke in the morning at the Druid Hills Baptist church and last night at the city auditorium.

Complete text of the morning sermon will be found on Page 4.

Georgians Plan Willkie Drive, Organize Club

Atlanta Considered as Headquarters for 'Solid South' Campaign.

A "Solid South for Willkie" movement was launched yesterday in behalf of Wendell L. Willkie's Republican candidacy for president, and Georgians completed a state-wide organization to work for his campaign.

While the temporary headquarters of the southern movement was established in Dallas, Texas, it was announced that Atlanta was strongly under consideration as the permanent center of activity.

Harry Sommers, Atlanta automobile dealer, heads the Georgia organization, with Dean Charles J. Hilkey, of Emory University Law school, as vice president and Frank Milton Gleason, Rossville attorney, as secretary and treasurer.

"Believing that the nomination of Wendell Willkie was the result of the expressed sentiment of the American people," a statement of the club read, "and that his election would assure the preservation of American institutions, this state-wide, nonpartisan, independent Georgia Willkie - for - President Club was formed."

In addition to the officers, the following were named to the executive committee: Graham Wright, Rome; Charles C. Hertwig, Macon; G. Leonard Allen, Atlanta; Martha M. Warren, Monticello, and Wilson Hardy, Rome.

"A survey of the situation," continued the statement, "leads thoughtful persons to the conclusion that issues today transcend all parties and groups, and consequently opportunity should be offered to affiliate with Willkie."

(Additional news of the Republican presidential candidate will be found on Page 3.)

Funds Provided For Expanding Military Posts

9,000 Reserve Officers Called to Duty for Special Training.

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, July 1.—The navy placed the biggest order in its history today—for 45 new warships to cost about $500,000,000—just two hours after President Roosevelt signed legislation to speed up contract-letting and shipbuilding. The President also signed bills authorizing appropriations of $18,500,000 for construction at 25 military posts and for acquisition of land at five others.

At the same time the army promoted 1,350 regular officers and called the first of 9,000 reserve officers to active duty for international duty.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—Included in the construction, rehabilitation and installation approved for various military posts today by President Roosevelt was a total of $2,685,500 of work in Georgia. For the Atlanta general depot $1,300,000 were provided; Fort Benning was allotted $1,320,500 and Fort McPherson, $65,000.

Purchase of 552,000 acres for an anti-aircraft training and firing center near Savannah was approved, but it was emphasized that the actual acquisition must await an appropriation.

Specialized training while the President discussed with defense advisors a program for further army expansion with emphasis on mechanization.

Two new agencies set up by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation arranged to buy 150,000 tons of rubber and 75,000 tons of tin for reserve stocks.

Canal Work Started.
And work was started on a third set of locks for the Panama Canal.

(President Roosevelt shortly will place before congress a $5,000,000,000 long-range plan for mechanization and rearmament of the army, it was announced today in a United Press dispatch.)

(The project, supplementing the $5,000,000,000 defense program already enacted, is being put in final draft and Secretary of War Louis Johnson said the finishing touches will be put on the program tomorrow and that the chief executive will send it to congress by special message, probably early next week.)

The navy, in its fourth contract-letting within three weeks, ordered 11 cruisers, 20 destroyers, 13 submarines and one large sea-

Traffic Deaths Here Maintain Rate Set in '39

19 Persons Killed Each Year During First Six Months.

The 1940 box score of Atlanta traffic fatalities is running neck-and-neck with last year, with 19 deaths by traffic for the first six months of each year, but the total lags eight deaths behind the total for the same period in 1939.

During all of 1939, 28 persons were killed in Atlanta by traffic accidents, but in 1938 when Atlantans were allowed to ride at 35 miles per hour without hearing a siren, 37 persons were killed. In December of 1938, the speed limit was reduced from 35 to 25 miles per hour.

Traffic fatalities were not alone reduced with the speed limit. Under the police classification of "property damages," which means a wreck no matter how small, the number dropped from 4,847 for 1938 to 3,948 for 1939.

During the first five months of 1940 there have been only 331 persons injured in accidents. Wrecks between January and May of 1940 total 1,386.

In Dallas, Texas, during the first five months of 1940, only 11 persons were killed. Dallas drivers are restricted to 20 miles per hour.

In Richmond, Va., which differentiates between its residential traffic and business traffic, with 15 miles in the business district and 25 in the residential area, the first five months of 1940 show 10 persons were killed.

Birmingham drivers are allowed to motor at 30 miles per hour, and in the first five months of this year, 13 have been killed.

Memphis has recorded 10 traffic deaths in the first five months of 1940. The speed limit is 30 miles an hour.

New Orleans has had 30 persons killed in the first five months of 1940. New Orleans' speed law is 20 miles per hour, with the exception of "natural grounds" marked off in the center of some roadways, where a limit of 30 is permitted.

City Personnel Body Toils for Meager Wage

3 Outstanding Atlantans Work for Average of 20 Cents an Hour.

Atlanta's Personnel Board, composed of three outstanding Atlantans, who direct civil service for about 1,250 municipal employees, is working for 20 cents an hour with no overtime, on the basis of hours it stayed on the job last week, it developed yesterday.

J. A. (Gus) Harper, former president of the Atlanta Federation of Trades and board chairman, was exhibiting figures to show that he and his colleagues, James P. Allen and Aubrey Milam, worked "for the city every day last week and drew compensation at the rate of 20 cents an hour."

The group was engaged in putting the final touches on the job and salary classification for 3,100 city employees. Daily sessions were necessary.

Carl T. Sutherland, personnel director, pointed out that the work of the board "is the cheapest and most efficient service the city buys."

Under the law establishing the board, its members may draw $10 for each meeting, but not more than $20 in any one month. Thus a board member may not receive more than $240 in any one year no matter how many meetings are held or how long the session may be.

Women's Clubs Raise $2,800 For Red Cross

Gift Skyrockets War Relief Fund Past $70,000 Mark.

The Atlanta Federation of Women's Club yesterday skyrocketed Atlanta's Red Cross war relief fund past the $70,000 mark when Mrs. Raymond H. Wolfe, president, presented P. C. McDuffie, campaign chairman, with a check for $2,800.

This money, raised through an all-star benefit concert June 16, brought the Atlanta total to $70,980.10. The organization's contribution was one of the largest single donations made during the campaign, McDuffie said.

In accepting the check he praised the work of the organization and directed special attention to the work done by Mrs. Wolfe, Mrs. E. Raymond Johnson, chairman of ticket sales; Mrs. James R. Little, co-chairman of the ticket division, and Mrs. Warren Foster, Mrs. William A. Garrett, Mrs. Sam Hirsch, Mrs. Hill Robertson, Miss Leila Sams and Miss Ross Bacon, all of whom sold more than $100 worth of tickets.

Mrs. Garrett led the group with $482.25 worth of tickets.

Included in yesterday's contributions was $2.30 from Gene Travis Smith, of 307 North Cheney avenue, East Point, who raised the money by selling doughnuts.

Winship Takes Post as Rotary President Here

Recently Headed University Center Drive; Other Officers Installed.

George Winship was installed as president of the Atlanta Rotary Club yesterday at the weekly meeting. Mr. Winship has long been active in civic work, and recently headed the successful University Center drive for funds.

Other new officers who will serve during the coming year are Alvin B. Cates, first vice president; William G. Perry, second vice president; Hal L. Smith, secretary, and Frank Maier, sergeant at arms.

James C. Malone, retiring president, presided at the meeting, expressed his appreciation for the co-operation shown him by the committees during the past year, and gave a summary of the club's civic and charitable activities.

Dr. James R. McCain and Toulman Hurt, vice presidents; William C. Harris, secretary, and Joseph Winship, sergeant at arms, are the other outgoing officers.

F. D. R. Seeks Graduated Tax On High Profits

Tells Congress Defense Burden Should Be Imposed 'Equitably.'

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt asked congress today to enact a "steeply graduated excess profits tax" applicable to all individuals and corporate organizations "without discrimination."

The text of the President's message follows:

"We are engaged in a great national effort to build up our national defenses to meet any and every potential attack.

"We are asking even our humblest citizens to contribute their might. It is our duty to see that the burden is equitably distributed, according to ability to pay, so that a few do not gain from the sacrifices of the many.

"I, therefore, recommend to the congress the enactment of a steeply graduated excess profits tax, to be applied to all individuals and all corporate organizations without discrimination.

Mr. Roosevelt did not estimate how much revenue an excess profits levy might yield. House Majority Leader Rayburn, who attended the White House conference which preceded the issuance of the President's message, said, however, that the tax would be along the lines of one levied in World War days.

Muddy Clothes Ruled Out as Clue to Still Man Convicted in Liquor Case Is Given a New Trial.

Presence on a man's clothing of red mud similar to that used in erecting a moonshine still is not sufficient evidence to connect him with an illegal liquor plant, the Georgia court of appeals ruled yesterday.

On this ground, the court granted a new trial to Hoyt Orr, given a $100 fine or 12 months on the public works on a charge of attempting to manufacture liquor in Gwinnett county.

Officers testified at his trial that they followed tracks from a still to a hear-by house and found Orr visiting there, his clothing spotted with mud of the same kind as in the still foundation.

The appellate court held there were numerous ways Orr might have gotten the mud on his clothes and that before evidence of this kind could be conclusive all other reasonable hypotheses must be exhausted.

37 Million Is Paid U. S. by Georgians

Taxes totaling $37,666,203.32 were paid by Georgians to the federal government during the fiscal year just ended, Marion H. en, collector of internal revenue, announced yesterday.

Land Bank Loan Rate Is Limited by New Law

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt signed into law today legislation prescribing a 3 1/2 per cent interest rate for Federal Land Bank and Land Bank commissioner loans until July 1, 1942.

Under previous law the 3 1/2 per cent rate on land bank loans would have increased to 4 per cent today. The old law also provided a 4 per cent rate on commissioner loans, which the new measure now reduces by half of 1 per cent.

16 More Accepted For Army Course

Fourth corps area headquarters announced that 16 additional applicants had been accepted yesterday for a 30-day special training course for professional and business men at Fort McPherson beginning July 8.

The camp, part of the C. M. T. C. program, is the only such camp in the fourth corps area. Three hundred trainees will receive instruction from regular army and reserve officers in a wide range of military duties. They will provide their own transportation to the camp and pay for their own meals.

Those accepted for the special training today included:

Lester Newman II, New Orleans; Sam Israel Jr., New Orleans; Jacques F. Levy, New Orleans; Robert L. Taylor, Memphis; Louis C. Gundry, New Orleans; James Henry Fulmer, Batesburg, S. C.; superintendent of schools, Kingsland, Ga.; Ernest Moore, Shelby, N. C.; George A. Dreyfus, New Orleans; Louis H. Yarrut, New Orleans; Van C. Smathers, Manning, S. C.; resident inspection engineer, Public Works Administration, Charleston, S. C.; Harrison R. Swink, editor, the Columbia State; Maurice Pallet, New Orleans; Russell S. Grove, Marietta; Marion A. Collins, Augusta; and Jeremiah C. Clark, Atlanta.

Officers Named To Aid Atlanta Quartermaster

Orders Issued as Fort McPherson Supply Depot Bill Is Signed.

First quartermaster corps officers stationed at various army posts in the Fourth Corps Area have been named assistants to the construction quartermaster at Atlanta, it was announced here yesterday before President Roosevelt signed a bill providing for erection of a huge general supply depot at Fort McPherson.

They are Lieutenant Colonel James R. Alfante, Fort Benning; Major Lawrence L. Simpson, Fort Bragg; Major George S. Deaderick, Maxwell Field; Major John E. Adamson, Fort McClellan, and First Lieutenant Albert Stoltz, Barksdale Field.

Other army orders announced by corps area headquarters yesterday included the transfer of Major Bernard F. Hurlless from duty with the Eighth Infantry brigade to the general staff corps at area headquarters; the commissioning of two Georgia doctors in the medical corps; and announcement that federal recognition has been given two Georgia National Guard officers.

To be commissioned first lieutenants, medical corps, regular army, are Dr. Jesse Douglas Harris, of Cordele, and Dr. Allen Dale Smith, of Commerce.

Promotion of William Erb, 134 Brighton road, Atlanta, to captain, 5th Cavalry brigade, and appointment of Corbett Williamson, of Macon, second lieutenant, 121st Infantry, Georgia National Guard, has been approved by the National Guard Bureau in Washington.

Atlantans Will Address Post Office Clerks' Group

O. E. Myers, manager, fifth United States civil service district, and Vaux Owens, of the veterans' Administration, will be principal speakers at the state convention of the United National Association of Post Office Clerks to be held in Rome July 4. Arkwright Being Considered As Willkie Successor, Report

Atlantans Has Long Been Leader in Utilities Field

Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Power Company, a subsidiary of the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation, is being seriously considered for the presidency of the corporation, a post just resigned by Wendell L. Willkie, Republican nominee for president, it was learned yesterday.

Meanwhile, the Associated Press quoted the Jackson Citizen Patriot at Jackson, Mich., as saying it had been informed by authoritative sources that Jacob Hekman and E. A. Yates have been selected as presidents of two Commonwealth & Southern Corporations headed by Willkie.

Both Yates and Hekman are serving as vice presidents now. The two corporations are the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation of New York and the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation of Delaware.

Arkwright has long been a leader in the utility field, and for years has been considered as a spokesman for the Commonwealth & Southern Corporation when Willkie was not available. During the recent attack on public utility holding companies, he was a leader in the fight against the bill.

He is recognized nationally as a leader in electrical progress and has served as president of both the National Electric Light Association and the Association of Edison Illuminating Companies. He is 69 years old.

Sheriff Alligood, Grady, Succumbs

CAIRO, Ga., July 1.—(P)—E. C. Alligood, 57, who was serving his third term as sheriff of Grady county, died in a Thomasville hospital last night of a heart ailment. Rites will be held at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in Cairo Baptist church, with interment in Cairo cemetery.

Sheriff Alligood was a native and lifelong resident of Grady county. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Verdie Pinson Alligood; two daughters, Mrs. Frank Wright, of Cairo, and Mrs. George Cannon, of Atlanta, and two brothers, E. J. Alligood, of Cairo, and D. C. Alligood, of Fitzgerald.

Sheriff Alligood was re-elected in the spring primary this year for another full four-year term, having served eight years. He formerly served as city councilman for a number of years, was an Odd Fellow, K. of P. and Mason.

Republican Nominee Hopes Roosevelt Is Renominated.

NEW YORK, July 1.—(P)—Wendell L. Willkie rid himself of business connections today, said he undoubtedly would campaign from one end of the country to the other, and expressed the hope "Mr. Roosevelt is renominated because I'd like to beat him."

The Republican presidential nominee held a press conference in the small, rather plainly decorated board room of Commonwealth & Southern Corporation at 20 Pine street, in the financial district.

Later in the day the corporation directors formally announced Willkie had resigned the $75,000-a-year presidency and directorship of the concern, effective July 10. The announcement said also that Willkie would resign all directorships and offices he holds in other companies of the Commonwealth & Southern systems. Directors said meetings would be held within a few days to fill the vacancies.

Commenting on his move, Willkie said:

"I think I should devote all my time to the campaign."

Banters With Reporters. Willkie, refreshed by his weekend aboard Publisher Roy W. Howard's yacht, banters with reporters, but avoided specific statements on policy.

"I expect in my acceptance speech (in Elwood, Ind.) to give my views and interpret the platform as I see it."

The acceptance probably will be after the Democratic convention in mid-July.

Next on his schedule, he indicated, is a vacation.

Willkie was asked whether John D. M. Hamilton would retain his job as Republican national chairman.

"Don't guess one way or the other," he replied.

A subcommittee of 12 members of the national committee meets in New York Wednesday to discuss the chairmanship, which also probably was a topic at Willkie's luncheon with Governor Harold Strassen, of Minnesota.

Among First Supporters. Strassen, keynoter at the convention, was one of the first big Republican leaders to come out for Willkie.

The nominee dismissed all criticisms of him by Democrats in Washington with:

"Those statements make me feel just wonderful. The boys down there have the jitters."

Once when the name of President Roosevelt came up, Willkie was asked about the visit to the White House for conference, suggested last week. He said he had heard nothing further about it.

He smiled, adding:

"As I understand the rule, you just don't break into the White House until you are elected."

4-H Club Teams Will Enter Contest

Miss Sara Weaver, DeKalb county home demonstration agent, yesterday announced 4-H Club team demonstration winners who will compete in a district contest July 18, 19 and 20 at Carrollton.

The teams, and the subjects of their demonstrations, are Amand and Connie B. Robertson, of Candler, "A Quart of Milk a Day;" Elsie Huey, of Southwest DeKalb, and Annette Miller, of Lithonia, "Give Eggs a Break;" and Lou Alice Stewart and Merrill Sergeant, of Brookhaven, "Sweet Cream Butter."

Beatrice Pritchard and Mary Lee Morris, of Avondale, will test their bread and muffin making skill in the district meet.

Tallapoosa Youth Loses Life While Swimming

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION. TALLAPOOSA, Ga., July 1.—Louis Langley, 21, son of Charles Langley, of Tallapoosa, was drowned yesterday in Pollak lake, about five miles from here while swimming with companions.

The body was recovered late in the afternoon.

Mr. Langley is survived by his father; one sister, Mrs. B. C. Smith, of Cedartown, and five brothers, Raymond, C. A., Curtis and Randolph Langley, of Tallapoosa, and Harold Langley, of Rome.

Atlanta Starts Examination of Food Handlers

17,500 To Be Tested Under Law; Employers Will Be Notified.

Examination of the 17,500 Atlanta food handlers was begun yesterday by the city health department under the new law requiring all food handlers to obtain certificates semi-annually showing them free of communicable diseases.

Dr. John P. Kennedy, city health officer, placed the division directly under the supervision of Dr. James F. Hackney, chief assistant, and about 75 persons received examinations the first day.

Dr. Hackney urged employers not to send their employees in for examinations until notified to do so by the examining office. The system has been devised for a dual purpose—to prevent congestion in the examining rooms and to prevent loss of time in making the examinations.

100-a-Day. Under the law, about 35,000 examinations must be given each year. Thus when the plan gets under way more than 100 examinations must be given each day.

"We are trying to stop stagger the examinations that even a Negro cook will not have to wait long for her examination," Dr. Hackney said. "We do not want employers to lose the service of their workers, nor do we want employees who must be examined to be inconvenienced by being forced to sit for long minutes in congested waiting rooms."

Dr. Kennedy urged employers and employees to co-operate with the department to "make the new health program the success to which workers and the citizens of Atlanta are entitled."

Co-operation Asked. Those in charge of administration of the new law requested employers not to discharge any employee having a disease, but to co-operate to see that the patient gets proper treatment.

"We know that a patient under treatment is the safest person one could employ," Dr. Hackney said. "We, therefore, strongly recommend that no person be dismissed from his or her job, but that they follow the routine we suggest for treatment."

Jury To Get Indictments In State Probe

Body Expected To Start Study of U. S. Charges Today.

Latest United States grand jury probe into activities of the State Highway Department is expected to be culminated today with the presentation of indictments for the jurors' consideration.

Federal grand jury was called into session Monday, June 24, and for six days has questioned witnesses on reports of irregularities within the department.

Appearing yesterday were Henry Newton, of Decatur; Harry L. Grimes, of Swainsboro; Ralph D. Osterout and Mrs. Mary S. Vines, of Atlanta. Mrs. Vines is secretary to ex-Klan Wizard Hiram W. Evans, now under federal indictment for an alleged conspiracy to control the sales of emulsified asphalt to the highway department, and on charges of using the mails to defraud.

Others who appeared before the jury last week were the three members of the State Highway Board, employees of the highway department and of the American Oil Company, a concern selling the state much of its gasoline.

Dr. W. Edwin Hemphill Will Teach at Emory

Dr. W. Edwin Hemphill, of Mary Washington College, in Fredericksburg, Va., will be acting professor of history at Emory University next year.

Dean J. H. Purks, of the college of arts and sciences, said yesterday that Dr. Hemphill will replace Dr. Haywood J. Pearce Jr., professor of American history, who has been granted a year's leave of absence to serve as vice president of Brenau College in Gainesville.

EXAMINE FOOD HANDLERS—These are the health officials who yesterday began the task of putting all food handlers in Atlanta under physical examination. From left to right they are Dr. P. C. Herault, T. E. Ashlet, clerk, Dr. M. C. McCall and Miss K. P. Jones, nurse.

'Chutes Pelter Field at Airport In Army Test

Dummies Drop Here, There as Soldiers Operate Aerial 'Umbrellas'

By DEEZY SCOTT.

Parachutes were landing with alarming regularity yesterday at the army airport at Candler Field, and a parachute-conscious throng was excited and amazed for a few minutes at least.

It was time for the yearly testing of the 26 parachutes used at the army airport here, so a big B-10 Martin bomber arrived from Fort Benning with two dummies to test the silk "umbrellas."

With the dummies, the visiting testers ride in the bomb bay of the plane. The dummies were dropped like bombs on the field from about 200 feet.

These dummies looked like legless corpses and were made of three-inch manila rope, weighing about 180 pounds. The ground crew, some of whom previously had tested parachutes at other fields, complained of the lack of names for the local dumb jumpers. The two at Chanute Field, in Rantoul, Ill., are called Maggie and Jiggs, but no name offered suited all the workers, so the dummies are doomed to another year of anonymity.

The parachutes were all the seat type, except one, known as the barrel type, which is worn on the chest. As each test was made, the white silk opened as the rip cord was pulled. This was done by a man in the bomber who used a rope, sometimes as short as four feet, and sometimes as long as seven, to give the dummy time to clear the plane.

Ground workers met the dummies, which although a rope-headed figure—wore suits similar to football uniforms. While waiting between tests the army men discussed the methods of Hitler's parachute troops.

"The Germans use pongee instead of silk," one sergeant explained, "but their ripcords are pulled from the planes, just as our dummies' are. And they hit the ground just as hard, too."

BISHOP TO SPEAK. COLUMBUS, Ga., July 1.—(P) The problem of traffic safety as it affects the construction of highways will be outlined for the Columbus Kiwanis Club tomorrow by M. C. Bishop, director of the division of traffic and safety in the State Highway Department.

U. S. To Limit Tobacco Men's Quota Slashes

Allotment Cuts Cannot Exceed 10 Per Cent Under Rules.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

ATHENS, Ga., July 1.—No farm allotment may be reduced at any time during the next three years more than 10 per cent from the 1940 flue-cured tobacco allotment, according to the provisions of the new tobacco amendments which make it possible for growers to vote on a three-year marketing quota beginning with the 1941 crop, Homer S. Durden, state AAA administrator, said today.

"Under a special provision for small tobacco farmers, farm allotments of two acres or less in 1940 cannot be reduced at any time during the next three years," he explained. "This guarantee, however, will not apply to those who violate the marketing quotas."

In addition to protection of allotments from downward adjustments, the amendments authorize the use of not more than 2 per cent of the state allotment in each of the next three years for the purpose of adjusting upward farm allotments which are low in comparison with allotments for similar neighboring farms.

Farmers will have the opportunity to vote on the three-year quota this month. Secretary of Agriculture Wallace has proclaimed a flue-cured tobacco marketing quota for July 20.

"Under the three-year quota, growers can make their plans without fear of drastic changes from year to year," Durden said. "Likewise, domestic manufacturers can pay fair prices for tobacco without fear of excessive production during the period, non-co-operators will be unable to profit at the expense of co-operating growers, and the government can give maximum support to prices for the export grades."

Gordon Road Airport Site To Be Studied

Commission Chairman Orders Survey of County-Owned Property.

A survey of county-owned property off Gordon road to determine how much earth would have to be moved to convert it into an airport was authorized yesterday by Ed Almand, chairman of the county commission, following an inspection tour of the site by Commissioners Winship Nunally and Harvie Perkins, of the Civil Aeronautics Authority.

The group visited the site yesterday and found that nearly a square mile was cleared. Almand said that when the engineering survey is completed he will ask that some of the commissioners be sent to Washington to ask army and navy officials to consider it as an airport in the national defense program.

Text of Dr. George Truett's Sermon on Faith

The complete text of Dr. George Truett's sermon, "A Prayer for Increased Faith," yesterday morning at the Druid Hills Baptist church follows:

Based on the brief prayer of the early apostles: "Increase our faith."—Luke 17:5.

A series of religious meetings for just one week in a modern city like Atlanta is a very brief time for such a meeting, and yet I have long ago learned that even in a few days, with intensive, united and prayerful effort, meeting of just a few days may be crowned with signal spiritual blessings.

We are all of one mind, I trust, that the highest spiritual welfare of ourselves, as Christians, and the highest spiritual welfare of those around us, loved ones under our roof, pupils in our classes, neighbors and friends who are not Christians is that they shall have from our lips the most worthy and earnest and faithful appeal that we can make to them to go with us in this better life.

We are minded definitely, I trust, to undergird all of these services with our most fervent prayers. There was never a great spiritual awakening among the people since the world began apart from prayer. Assembled here this morning, what do we hear without God? "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it." Morning, noon and evening, let us call upon Him. In the privacy of our own closets and unitedly, let us wait upon God.

I am wondering if every Christian won't resolutely make a mental note of those around him who are not Christians and set himself to the blessed business of winning them to these meetings. The world is dying from the lack of personal attention.

URGENT PRAYER FOR MORE FAITH

Now in our service this morning, let us think together on a prayer for the increase of faith. It was offered by Christ's early apostles in a time when a great obligation was laid upon them by the Master Himself. The story is told in the 17th chapter of Luke's Gospel: "Take heed to yourselves: If thy brother trespass against thee, rebuke him; and if he repent, forgive him. And if he trespass against thee seven times in a day, and seven times in a day turn again to thee, saying, 'I repent,' thou shalt forgive him. And the apostles said unto the Lord, 'Increase our faith.'" As much as to say, "Lord, if Thou dost expect that of us, then increase our faith."

This is a suitable prayer for us today and tomorrow, and for all the days that are coming, "Increase our faith." All of us are acutely aware that we are living now in a day when the tumults and confusions and distressing trials of the world cast their shadows everywhere. One wonders if in the years that have come we have faced a more serious day than we are facing right now throughout the world. But it isn't a time for the weakening of faith, but for the strengthening of faith. God reigns. He has not turned things over to Satan. He has not forgotten. He waits to be gracious, and when the people, you and I, and our fellow humanity, assume the right attitude toward God, He will make bare his arm with delivering mercy.

"Careless seems the Great Avenger, History's pages but record One death grapple in the darkness, 'Twixt false systems and the Word."

"Truth forever on the scaffold, Wrong forever on the throne, But that scaffold sways the future, And behind the dim unknown Standeth Christ within the shadows, Keeping watch above His own."

History will not let us forget that the greatest years of Christian triumph have followed in the wake of heartache and heartbreak and suffering, even unto death. It shall be so again. God reigns. This prayer of the apostles when a great demand was upon them is for us today.

I felt constrained last Sunday morning, yesterday a week ago, to call my own people back to Christ's great marching orders to His church: "Go and make disciples of all nations, and then baptize them, and teach them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you; and, if you will, lo, I am with you always even unto the end of the world."

Whatever the difficulties that come to try us, we are following a leader, steadfast, almighty, all merciful, and gracious. This is the prayer for us: "Lord if Thou dost expect us down here in a darkened and troubled world to reflect that God may now be getting ready some humble lad, in some humble home, here, or there or yonder, whose testimony for Christ a few years hence will rally America and the world to follow our risen Savior and Lord? And as journalists from near and far shall seek to trace the hidings of his power, this echoing word will come back from God: 'Your faith is not to stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God.'"

It is the most important prayer of all, because it is the most important matter of all, even our victory that overcometh the world, even our faith. The New Testament speaks of three precious things—the precious blood of Christ, exceedingly great and precious promises, and precious faith. But faith, I repeat, is the fundamental grace. It precedes and encompasses the other graces. Faith is the connecting link between God and man, between man and man. You would have utter wreckage without faith. Faith is the vital matter of all. Well may we tell our loved ones and our pupils and our neighbors, mark their ruin. They will not believe on Christ, God's divinely appointed remedy for the world, and their salvation.

WARNS FAITH CAN BE MISPLACED
Let us remember that our faith may be misplaced. How and when is our faith misplaced? It is misplaced when it is put in mere appearances. It is a constant temptation to us to walk by sight and not by faith. The temptation is often with us to calculate wholly with human resources, and to leave God out of all our plans and activities. Let me speak quite personally, at this point, for a moment. In the beginning months of my humble ministry, I was the financial secretary of one of our noblest Christian schools—Baylor University of Texas. I was charged with the task of securing funds to clear the institution of burdensome debt. The president, at that time, of its board of trustees, was the famous pastor and preacher, Dr. B. H. Carroll.

His counsel and co-operative help with the young secretary were unceasing and incomparable. Again and again he accompanied the secretary on speaking tours, in quest of gifts for the institution. On one of his tours unusual preparations had been made for a large mass meeting for the enlistment of the people in an important section of the state. We reached the given community the evening before the widely heralded mass meeting of the coming morning. We learned that large plans had been made for the meeting and a vast attendance was expected. During the night the clouds enveloped their floods upon the earth, making it impossible for the vast crowds to assemble as had been planned and expected. Only the few could gather, but the great leader and preacher, Dr. Carroll, spoke to the small company with marvelous fervor and comprehensiveness, on the lofty claims of Christian education.

Then he announced that the young secretary would speak, after the singing of a hymn, and at once secure from the people their gifts for the noble institution. While the hymn was being sung I wrote on a card, suggesting to the great preacher that I would speak for a few moments, as he had suggested, but in view of the small company present he would doubtless agree that no collection should then be attempted. Quickly, he wrote these words upon the reverse side of the card: "Never take counsel of your fears or appearances; do your whole duty, and you may unfeigningly leave the results with God. Certainly, you will ask the people present to make their gifts today." I did as he suggested, and the gifts from the people, on that day of the small congregation, were indescribably impressive.

Women gave their rings from their fingers and men gave their watches and their purses. It was one of the days of God's right hand among His people. It marked an epoch in their lives. But let us hark back to the epochal message that was on the card: "Never take counsel of your fears or appearances; do your whole duty, and you may unfeigningly leave the results with God." Is not this our abiding and supreme temptation, to take counsel of our fears and of appearances? If we follow such counsel, we are foredoomed to inevitable defeat.

WARNS OF FAITH IN HUMAN AGENCY
Again, our faith is misplaced when it is put in human agency. This temptation is likewise constant and very menacing. To the degree that we put our confidence in the arm of flesh, we shall fail in Christ's work.

All along the unfolding centuries, God has surprised the people with His strange choices. He chose His early apostles from the humblest surroundings. Look at His choice of two men for His service during the past generation, C. H. Spurgeon and D. L. Moody. The former was brought to London ere he was out of his teens, and in half a dozen years his testimony for Christ had challenged London and the British Isles and the whole round earth. See also the far-reaching testimony of plain D. L. Moody. Two continents were moved closer to God by their testimony.

Wherein were the hiding of power in the lives of these mighty servants of God? They were plain men, from humble surroundings. They did not have the training of the schools. And yet they moved the world, and their vital testimony lives on and on. What is God saying to us as we gaze upon such men? He is saying this: "Your faith is not to stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." Does it not comfort your hearts, even as it comforts mine, to reflect that God may now be getting ready some humble lad, in some humble home, here, or there or yonder, whose testimony for Christ a few years hence will rally America and the world to follow our risen Savior and Lord? And as journalists from near and far shall seek to trace the hidings of his power, this echoing word will come back from God: "Your faith is not to stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God."

DECLARES MEN CAN "LIMIT" GOD

Most of all, our faith is misplaced, because we limit God. Here is one of the most arresting expressions in all the Bible: "They limited God." Does not the thought, the statement that God can be limited seems utterly impossible. God is omnipotent, omniscient, omnipresent, eternal—can such a being be limited by weak, finite men? He can be so limited, else man would be a mere machine, with no more volition than a tree or a stone. Men are clothed with moral freedom and can say "yes" or "no" to God. We are moral beings, because we are free. The highest prerogative of a human life is the power of choice, and such prerogative is likewise life's gravest danger.

The challenging question arises: How may we limit God? There are various ways whereby we may limit Him. We may limit Him in the realm of prayer. Does not the Apostle James tell us: "Ye have not, because ye ask not?" And does he not also remind us that we can limit God by praying with the wrong motive? Our prayers may be dictatorial instead of humbly submissive to God. Their true meaning may be: "Not Thy will but mine." The heart of all true prayer is unreserved submission to the will of God. His will is always right and safe and best. Why should men hesitate to pray, without stint or reserve, that His will may be done?

We may limit God by our lives. Our lives are either channels or clogs, through which blessings may come to the people, or be hindered from coming to them. Christ's people are the light of the world—what if their light be darkness? They are the salt of the earth—what if their salt shall lose its savor? One Sunday morning at the close of the service, as I lingered to speak to the people, as I always do, I noticed that one of the most beautiful and attractive women, nominally a member of our church, and only nominally—a very worldly woman, was waiting to see me. After practically everything else was gone, she came up to me, and I saw the tears in her eyes. She cried out that she was in deep distress about her husband—one of the most prominent professional men in our community, but an unbeliever.

"I would gladly die for him," she said, "if I could just bring him to Christ. Won't you pray with me to pray for him?" I pulled out a little book from my pocket, and turning the pages, I showed her his name. "What does that mean?" she asked. "That means," I said, "that I have been praying for him every day for 10 years." As she went away, one of the women in our church, an elderly woman whom I called "Mother," came up to me and said, "Son, I don't mean to be impertinent, but I wonder what she said to you." And then I told her the story. "Oh," she said, "she doesn't have to die for him, if she would only live as a Christian should." The best argument for Christianity is a faithful, joyful, consistent Christian.

Again, we can limit God by idleness. What a menace is idleness, anywhere and everywhere? The old saying is wretchedly true that an "idle brain is the devil's workshop." The other old saying is equally true that "Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do."

Most of all, we may limit God by unfaith. We look at difficulties and fail to look beyond them to God. We talk about baffling situations and hopeless cases and leave God out. Against every difficulty, the Lord puts His searching inquiry: "Is anything too hard for the Lord?" What kind of a God have we? Is He infinite in wisdom and power and mercy? Is He mighty to save? Do we have a great God, or is He helpless before the stern facts of sin and sorrow and death? When the noble Morrison was sailing, as a young man, to be a missionary in China, the captain of the boat taunted the young missionary with the question: "Do you think that you can save the heathen Chinese?" The young man made the simple but complete reply: "No sir, but I think that God can." There is no message: "God can."

"And I alone escaped to tell the tale..."

"There once was a holiday called the 4th of July and every year people were in such a hurry to enjoy this holiday that they jumped into their cars and rushed out to bump into other cars and turn each other over and run off of mountains and hit

each other sideways until one year there were so many people in cars doing so many things they there was nobody to come at all and I

George Foster To Be Foreman Of Grand Jury

Judge Charges Group To Seek Enforcement of Gaming Laws.

George S. Foster, of 625 Kennewick avenue, N. E., an optical company executive, was elected foreman of the new July-August grand jury yesterday after it was sworn in and charged in Fulton superior court by Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr.

Other officials named were W. B. Willingham Jr., of 230 Westminster drive, assistant foreman; B. J. Humrickhouse, of 1447 North Morningside drive, N. E., secretary, and W. O. Chears, of 110 Fifth street, N. E., assistant secretary.

Judge Etheridge, telling the jurors of their duty, asked them to seek enforcement of the gambling laws, adding that "gaming is one type of law enforcement that has not received sufficient attention."

The jurist also referred to the war situation abroad and these "unusual times," but instructed the jury to devote its time to the affairs of government of Fulton county. This jury was not specifically instructed to investigate county affairs, but was asked by the May-June jury to continue the flogging probe which Solicitor General John A. Boykin and county police are conducting now.

The jury handled routine business at its first session and announced that it would skip the regular Friday meeting because of the July 4 holiday.

In addition to the officers, the 23-man jury includes: W. Chess Smith, W. S. McLarin Jr., C. E. Sciple, E. S. Mabry Sr., E. J. Wood, C. W. Seagraves, F. M. Farley Jr., George F. McNulty, W. H. Shirley, Jesse C. Willis, J. T. Fitten, H. R. Lewis, Elmer F. Cox Sr., A. M. Rainwater, J. T. Osburn Sr., K. A. F. Leineweber, Robert B. Strickland, J. E. Edmondson and Thomas C. Harris.

'Pat' McKenna, Doorkeeper for F. D. R., Dies

Veteran Figure Had Spent 37 Years at White House.

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—Patrick McKenna, doorkeeper to the President, died today of a kidney affliction, 37 years to the day after he came to the white house.

McKenna, who was 65, was the friend of diplomats, statesmen and politicians whom he had been ushering in to the President's office since the Theodore Roosevelt administration. His wife survives.

A genial Irishman, McKenna presided behind a big mahogany desk in the rear of the lobby of the executive offices, greeting everyone who dropped in to see the chief executive.

President Roosevelt learned of McKenna's illness after returning yesterday from a weekend cruise on the Potomac river, and immediately wrote him a letter in long-hand which ended: "Come back soon. I need you."

Georgia Politics May Push War From Spotlight

Abit Nix Opens Campaign Today; Others Follow July 4.

By LUKE GREENE.

Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini will have to put some fancy frills on their blitzkriegs this week if they expect to take the spotlight away from Georgia's politicians.

The tussle with the war lords will begin today when Abit Nix, of Athens, opens his campaign for governor with big celebration in Waycross, sponsored by the Waycross Nix-for-Governor Club.

The stopper will really fly out of the jug Thursday, Independence Day, when three gubernatorial candidates will launch their campaigns in different sections of the state.

Eugene Talmadge, who will light the fuse to his campaign at Albany, was getting his fireworks all assembled yesterday. Columbus Roberts will be at Blue Ridge, and Hugh Howell will release his volley at Ellaville.

Deen Gets Jump.

Braswell Deen, the last man to qualify, got the jump on his competitors by beginning his campaign with a radio address last Friday night. He will not speak July 4. He prefers to be individualistic and let the people rest. Thinks there may be too much oratory floating about.

The conversation in the corridors of the capitol is switching from the war to politics. A week or two ago, you could hardly walk into an office without someone blurting out, "What's the latest war news?"

Some of the boys who are a little more politically inclined than some others actually got worried. They were afraid the candidates were bogging down, afraid there was going to be no interest in the races.

The situation has changed considerably in the last few days, however. There is more talk about the candidates. Casual visitors from Podunk and Licksville walk up to you and begin talking about what's happening politically in their communities. There is a little less tension over the war.

There are many kinds of rumors afloat. Who started them or why they were started is rarely revealed. They are just rumors, political gossip.

One is that two gubernatorial candidates will drop out before time for the voters to go to the polls. The observer bearing these tidings did not know which two. He just expects the field to be narrowed down to three candidates.

Roosevelt's Choice?

Another rumor is that Deen is scheduled to get a pat on the back from President Roosevelt if the President is nominated for a third term. Others laughed off such a prediction.

In announcing his platform, however, the state welfare director emphasized that he was not the candidate of any administration, and declared that so far as he knew he was not running with any special support from the Rivers clan. So far the Governor has not publicly bestowed his blessings upon any candidate. He has said repeatedly that he is interested only in finishing his present term as Governor.

But the candidates are beginning to talk, and the laymen, in turn, are joining in. July weather and barbecues and red lemonade are beckoning. It seems that things will pick up as election time approaches.

Hugh Howell said yesterday he was not making any special bid for a big crowd at his celebration in Ellaville Thursday.

"We are going to have a lot of our friends there, people who are going to vote for us, but we are not trying to break any attendance records," he said.

He explained that he was opening his campaign at Ellaville because he left off there in 1938 when he ran for Governor.

"I'm just picking up where I left off," he said.

'Defend Ireland,' Says Hore-Belisha

DEVONPORT, England, July 1.—(P)—Leslie Hore-Belisha, former war secretary, urged the British government today to strive for "united defense policy" in Ireland to make both Ulster and Eire impregnable against German attacks.

"The question may be who is to get the ports of Ireland first," said Hore-Belisha at a political meeting. "Is it to be Hitler? This can be prevented only by a united policy in Ireland. Surely in such circumstances a united policy in Ireland is not beyond the wit of the government to achieve."

525,000 State Drivers Obtain New Licenses

Intensified Safety Campaign Planned for July, Sullivan Announces.

More than half a million Georgia drivers got under the wire safely with their license applications before the deadline fell at midnight Sunday but thousands of belated license seekers still through state patrol headquarters throughout the state, Major Lon Sullivan, director of the Department of Public Safety, said yesterday.

All applications postmarked before the deadline were accepted without penalty. Those who were late will be required to take a driver's examination, Major Sullivan said. Licenses issued so far number 525,000.

With July down on the books as one of the most dangerous months, Major Sullivan announced the beginning of an intensified safety campaign to bring last year's July total of 70 deaths far below that mark. Troopers and district commanders from Griffin and Cartersville arrived in Atlanta yesterday for final safety instructions, and Major Sullivan goes to Madison and Gainesville today to conduct intensified training courses.

All troopers, Major Sullivan said, have volunteered to go on a seven-day week during July in order that road patrol may be complete and constant.

"We are going to be vigorously watchful throughout the month," Major Sullivan said. "We intend to try to prove that one of the most dangerous months, when the highways are clogged with traffic, can be made one of the safest months."

F.D.R. Vetoes Bill to Give Band Masters a Boost

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt vetoed today a bill to give army band masters a status of commissioned officers, instead of their present rank of warrant officers.

"The legislation," Mr. Roosevelt said in a message to the house, "constitutes a novel departure in the organization of the army for which there is no necessity from a military standpoint."

Also, he said, the bill would single out discriminatorily a special group of warrant officers for increases in rank and pay.

Dentist Is Held After Cordele Woman Is Slain

Mrs. Pearl Lotridge Found Shot Fatally in Home.

CORDELE, Ga., July 1.—(P)—Mrs. Pearl Lotridge, about 40, was shot and killed early today at her home in north Cordele, and a dentist who had offices there was held on a murder warrant.

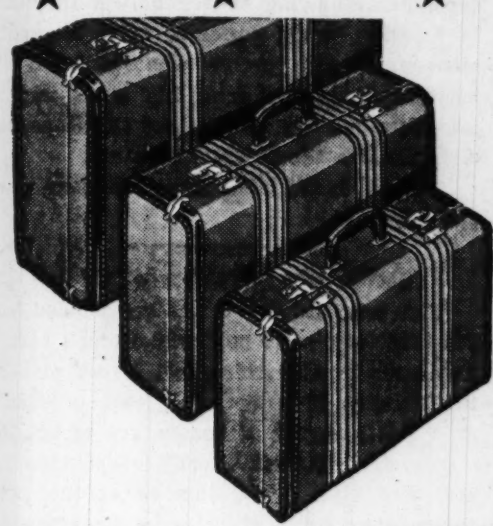

Sheriff J. H. Pitts said Dr. V. C. Grubbs was in Cordele hospital for treatment of superficial scalp wounds. The sheriff said there were no eyewitnesses to the shooting, and that the inquest was delayed until Grubbs "could sober up for questioning."

As Sheriff Pitts and city police recounted the affair: A neighbor called city officers to report a shooting at the Lotridge home. Two policemen who answered the call were unable to enter the front door, but were called to a side entrance by Grubbs. There they were forced to break into the home, finding Mrs. Lotridge lying on the porch floor, shot through the chest, and Grubbs lying with his head in her lap.

Both were taken to the hospital, where Mrs. Lotridge died in a few minutes. The woman was killed by a charge from a 12-gauge shotgun, fired at her through the bathroom door, the sheriff said he was told.

ATLANTA, GA., JULY 2, 1940.

Willkie's "Fifth Column"

Having demonstrated their man was no Wee Willie Winkle in politics, the Wendell Willkie forces have inaugurated another political blitzkrieg, replete with figurative "fifth columnists" and parachute troops.

This one is aimed at the one-time solid south.

Particular emphasis will be placed on the effort to crack the state of Georgia.

Georgia has been the citadel of Democracy. When the states were falling like ducpins before the charm of Mr. Herbert Hoover, the Great Engineer, Georgia remained in the Democratic column. It is true Fulton county went for the Great Engineer and that he amassed a sizable vote. But Georgia went for the nominee.

Mr. Willkie, who has more political "oomph" in one sentence than Mr. Hoover had in an entire campaign's supply of speeches, is looking south for electoral votes.

Temporary headquarters have been set up in Texas and Atlanta likely will have an office from which the Willkie propaganda, charm and other, and more tangible aids, will be dispensed.

Willkie is going to have the campaign fund about which a candidate dreams. Not since the lizzy days of the boom years ending in 1929 have the financial leaders been so interested in presidential aspirant. Willkie will have the greatest fund ever placed at the disposal of a republican nominee.

Even those of the Republican Old Guard, who fought his nomination, are beginning to believe he has a chance to win. The Old Guard likes a winner. The Republicans will be aided by many "Willkie Democrats." The south will apply its quota of these. In fact, the phrase "Willkie Democrat" may be expected to become rather familiar before the campaign is many weeks old. Never before has a Republican candidate had such a political "Fifth Column" in the south.

The effort to make Georgia a Republican state interests the Willkie forces for a number of reasons. They want Georgia because it is the resident's second home and because it always has been an impregnable bulwark of the party. Also, its electoral votes are as good as those of Vermont. If they can be had.

They believe they can succeed in Georgia because there is no national race, other than to be presidential, to interest the voters. There are no senate contests. They count, too, on the fact that one of the leading candidates for governor, Mr. Eugene Talmadge, has been an outspoken foe of the administration and will hardly be active in its behalf. They do not believe Senator Walter George, after the efforts to purge him and after the proposed SEC investigation of the Georgia Power Company's alleged activity in his behalf, will be active.

So, with Florida, North Carolina and Tennessee having been broken away from the solid south in previous elections, the Willkie forces are looking at the South through rose-colored glasses. Georgia will see considerable Willkie forces.

Their parachute troops are ready and the number of Willkie fifth columnists in the south really amazing. They are going to loose a political blitzkrieg the like of which we haven't seen since Hoover's first campaign. And this time will make that one look old-fashioned.

This one is going to be mechanized, figuratively speaking.

All good Democrats will be wise to keep their weather eyes open. The Willkie parachutes will be dropping from the sky any minute now!

"Russia Orders—"

While the United States, great democracy of the world, has been seeking for years to make the lot of the worker easier and more pleasant, there have been, in this country, certain human termites who have sought to induce those workers to become Communists. It is well known that the Russian Soviet represents Communist ideal and that the Communist party in this country takes its orders directly from Moscow.

The trend of labor legislation in America has been toward shorter hours of work, greater pay and more time for recreation. It has been considered a contribution to a better social order to reduce the time a man must work in order to earn sufficient income to live comfortably and well, to educate a family and to enjoy the pleasures and opportunities of the finer ways of life.

It is, therefore, illuminative to read a recent "order" of the Russian, Soviet government and thus learn under what conditions workers in that country, the Communist ideal and the one, it is to be presumed, Communists here want their, converts to emulate, earn their daily bread.

The Russian government, says an Associated Press dispatch from Moscow, has ordered longer hours per day and more work days per week for all workers. What is more, it is warned that any who quit their jobs without official permission will be imprisoned.

Of course, if American workers, free and independent, enjoying the conditions they find in America, would prefer to serve a government master who "orders" whatever hours and whatever pay he desires, and sends men to prison for quitting the job, they should espouse and advocate the Communist cause.

But it is hardly likely many American workers will do so.

Another Little Tax or So

The American citizen who has deluded himself that taxes can't bother him much because he doesn't own anything had a rude awakening Monday—if he bought a pack of cigarets or a wee half-pint of Scotch, rye or bourbon.

Standard cigarets, already loaded with federal and state taxes, jumped another cent, though some stores which make them "leaders" may hold the old price for a while.

Gasoline, upon which state and federal taxes had already reached 50 per cent, has had a half-cent federal tax added. Movie tickets, formerly exempted until the price passed 40 cents, are now soaked 10 per cent from the 21-cent minimum up.

Perhaps the loudest wails will be heard from the imbibers who like to take home a pint of ingredients for mint juleps along in the cool of the evening. Red liquor has gone up from a dime to 15 cents the pint.

The tax may tend to cut down consumption, but that is to be doubted. The chap who likes his highball will have it.

He can console himself that only a few years ago he paid six bucks a quart for so-called bourbon from the bootlegger's hip—when he could get it.

The taxes, almost certainly, are here to stay—or be raised again. It costs a lot of money to run the government. And no one objects—much—since it all is to pay for protection.

Ninety Thousand Hot Dogs

Now the peerless leaders have been nominated and the Republican delegates have gone home to round up the votes, the important details of the national convention, from Philadelphia's standpoint at least, are being officially reported.

The news story says the visitors spent 12 million dollars, consumed 140,000 soft drinks and ate 90,000 hot dogs. The report omitted to state whether with or without onions.

Now, that is something to shoot at.

Many cities desire great national political conventions. They even build auditoriums to house them, contribute hugely to campaign funds.

But a city—as a city, meaning the Chamber of Commerce—isn't so much concerned with who lands the nomination, as with how many visitors will attend and how much cash will they leave.

Twelve million dollars is quite a sum. As the comedians remark, "It ain't hay."

Even if most of it did go directly to hotels, taxicabs, bar rooms, restaurants, and hot dog vendors, it went right into general circulation.

The biggest convention Atlanta ever enjoyed was the Baptist World Alliance last year. It was an enormous success and of great publicity value. The figures, if memory is to be trusted, showed a satisfactory run on soft drinks but I don't think the hot dogs figured up to 90,000. And the receipts from alcoholic beverages were virtually—and virtuously—nil.

Atlanta would like to have the Baptists again. But it would rather—this is the coldly commercial attitude—have the Democrats in convention assembled. She would even accept the Republicans—if she had the chance.

Thanks to the G. O. P., anyway, for this relief. For a week, during the Philly roundup, one heard little of Europe and the doings of its gashouse gang.

COMMON-SENSE DECISION

(From The Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

Judge Walther's decision that legal talent is not required to fill out real estate purchase forms and other preliminary papers is a common-sense ruling. It saves the broker, the purchaser and the seller from a Saragossa sea of red tape that would make real estate transactions something of an ordeal.

The suit to have lawyers called in to fill all forms whenever a purchase was made was brought by a group of the Cuyahoga County Bar Association against V. C. Taylor & Son, Inc. The case took an national significance, for the National Association of Real Estate Boards lent the assistance of its legal rights committee. The case will be appealed, but there is reason to hope that Judge Walther's judicious arguments will be sustained.

Lawyers still will have their part to play in real estate transactions. The ruling does not affect deeds and mortgages and long-term leases where technical knowledge is important. In purchase agreements only certain blanks in a paper, already prepared by a lawyer, need to be filled. The task is clerical, one that any person of average intelligence can handle.

THE CAPITAL PARADE

By JOSEPH ALSOP AND ROBERT KINTNER.

PORTRAIT OF WENDELL WILLKIE

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—First contact with the Republican choice for the presidency commonly produces a mild shock. He strikingly fails to conform to either the corporate or the political ideal. The businesslike manner, the commanding glance, the admirable if faintly constrictive tailoring and the efficient affability and air of having no time to waste—all these usual ornaments of the "great executive" are as strangely absent as the politician's posturing and tendency to make public speeches in private places.

Wendell Willkie is a large, loosely built man who must have been very tall before he acquired a pronounced stoop, and distinctly handsome before he put on weight. Generally described as "shaggy" and a "bear of a man," he seems at first more soft than berish, while such shaginess as he has is derived from his fondness for disheveled dress. On his first appearance, in truth, he suggests a pleasant, civilized scholar who has advanced into his busy but amiable forties in the shelter of one of the less blatant centers of learning.

The first impression fades, however, when he moves and when he talks. His look of softness is belied by the tremendous, ungainly energy of his gestures and walk. There is nothing flabby or Hardingesque about him. His speech is easy, quick and forceful, always pointed, and perfectly devoid of those little verbal exhibitionisms which are the common failings of the political ego.

In conversation his voice is much richer and lower than it is on the stump and it has a flexibility and variety of tone that lend a special expressiveness to everything he says. He is an excellent talker, salty, succinct, and shrewdly humorous.

HE TAKES THEM INTO CAMP

The remark most often heard at the convention was, "You might think he was Roosevelt, the way he takes those delegates into camp." The delegates' conversion to Willkie was completed by the peculiar Willkie manner, which is certainly as effective as the President's, but different in several ways. He does not have the President's rather overwhelming geniality, and never gives you the feeling that his charm is being turned on as though it were a Klieg light. On the contrary, while he is quite genial enough and can shake hands and smile at strangers with the best of them, the most conspicuous ingredient of his manner is a sort of unassuming simplicity.

Obviously, he is not a simple man. All really effective political leaders are extremely complex personalities, with a touch of the actor about them. No doubt some of the best Willkie effects are calculated. But those who watched him listening to the nominating speeches and to the balloting could not think of another politician who would have behaved in quite the same way in anything like similar circumstances. He did not attempt to conceal the fact that he was deeply moved. He frankly shared the tremendous excitement of the little group who sat with him in the dingy hotel bedroom. Yet he never for an instant posed, or performed for his audience, or seemed anything but a natural, surprisingly unassuming man suddenly confronted with a very big job.

Obviously, he is no more humble than he is simple, if humility is to mean self-doubt. Self-confidence is as necessary to the political leader as is the actor's touch. But those who saw him in the days of the convention, when every circumstance conspired to make him play the man of destiny, could hardly credit the control which he displayed. With delegates, political leaders, newspapermen, amateur supporters and plain busy-bodies plucking at his sleeve, whispering in his ear, dragging him into corners and asking for his time for 18 hours every day for six days on end, he always managed to seem accessible, interested and, most difficult of all, grateful for advice.

On one of the worst days, an anonymous admirer telephoned him from Miami to tell him what he ought to say in his acceptance speech. While his corps of secretaries and lieutenants danced with irritation, he listened patiently for some 20 minutes. And when he put down the receiver, he remarked, "Think of that fellow calling me all the way from Miami to try to do me a good turn!"

MIND OF WENDELL WILLKIE

The mind behind the manner and the look is somewhat more difficult to describe. His writings prove that he is remarkably articulate, possesses a broad, sound base of settled opinions, and looks at the problems of the modern world with some freshness of eye. He is certainly not a rigid "let business have its way" man of the old-fashioned Republican type. On the basis of what he has said and written to date, he would seem to be the nearest thing yet produced in the United States to the best kind of English conservative, whose successful slogan has always been "liberal measures, conservatively administered."

For a businessman and politician, he is strangely learned, being a specialist and very nearly a scholar in the history of late 18th and early 19th century England. He won the belles lettres vote some months ago with an admirable and penetrating review of Lord David Cecil's "The Young Melbourne." Possibly it is his habit of study which causes him to see world events in an intelligent historical perspective. The same gift of perspective makes him tolerant, and fond of repeating the old maxim, "Any man who is not something of a Socialist before he is 40 has no heart; any man who is still a Socialist after he is 40 has no head."

His intellectual tolerance, in truth, is his most confidence-producing characteristic. He gives the impression that, although he is running for the presidency in a time when every landmark and fundamental assumption of our present way of life may soon be swept away, he will be able to adjust his views and adapt his policies to the onrush of events.

Perhaps, as the campaign unfolds, he will develop feet of clay. At the convention there were one or two unpleasant signs, such as the presence in his entourage, in an unimportant position, to be sure, of one of the stupidest, most flannel-mouthed reactionaries in the entire New York financial district. But those who know Willkie well say that if he makes mistakes, they will be his own, and predict, furthermore, that if he is elected some of his more Tory admirers will be grievously surprised by what follows. Unless everyone who has watched him is completely deceived, he will run his campaign almost single-handed. And, whatever else he does with it, he ought to make it exciting.

Editor Constitution: Recent trends in the European conflict tend to place emphasis on the need for ridding ourselves of the pro-Russian Communist party and the pro-Nazi German Bund. FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Parachutist Tactics.

NEW YORK, July 1.—The editor of a little monthly journal of a post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars offers a suggestion by which the Americans in the newspaper guild could vote the Communist bow-legged and, by force of numbers, permanently exclude them from any office above that of latrine orderly which, no doubt, would be allotted to them as a political courtesy.

His proposal is that every veteran's publication in the country—and the V. F. W. has 32 in New York alone—should qualify every man who is eligible under the shyster interpretation of the rules of eligibility adopted by the Communists for their own papers and needle the bols with their own medicine.

The Communists, it should be remembered, devised a scheme of parachuting into the guild disguised as newspapermen with the object of controlling the guild and eventually of controlling the entire American press through the power of the closed shop. Any Communist or bleeding-heart weekly or improvised fake publication, including foreign language pamphlets and even mimeographed sheets, may qualify editors, contributors and hang-arounders under the Communist plan. There is a slight violation of the guild constitution in this procedure but the Communists have established the precedent for their own benefit and the rescue squads of Americans could insist on the same privilege.

One-Sided Campaigns.

The guild does not enforce guild conditions on Communist publications. It campaigns only against American newspapers having assets and financial responsibility which, at very worst, pay better than the best Communist papers, do not inspect the political beliefs of their employees and provide legitimate living jobs for genuine newspaper workers. The Red nucleus of voting strength resides in publications having little or no physical property and no responsibility. Mock-journalists of the Communist bloc thus may exert a voting strength under party discipline far greater than that of a larger group of Americans on daily papers.

The V. F. W. post in question has 532 members who could qualify as journalists under the Communists' pretext by contributing an occasional column or paragraph to their post publication. They would be fake journalists, to be sure, but less legitimate than many Communists.

To extend the idea, the American Legion, the Elks, Moose, Eagles and Owls, the Shriners and Knights of Columbus, the Liberty and Anti-Saloon leagues, the D. A. R. and G. A. R. and thousands of other groups which publish occasional bulletins or magazines could qualify countless full-time, part-time and occasional or purely nominal journalists.

A Grim Farce.

Unfortunately, although the Communists' own precedent would permit this grim burlesque of the original and forgotten purpose of the guild, the actual perpetration of such a well-intended fraud would churn the affairs of the guild into absurd confusion. Possibly, however, the suggestion that this strategem has been seriously proposed by a patriotic group will result in a revision of the rules at the Memphis convention in July and a stricter application of the revised rules so as to exclude Communist parachutists after now.

The suggestion is earnestly recommended to patriotic groups. The Communist bosses of the guild will try to turn them off but if they persist, they can force their way in by the door which the Communists opened to admit their comrades.

The guild constitution admits "any person gainfully employed in and devoting the major part of his time to an editorial, business, circulation, promotion or advertising department, or kindred groups of employees, of a news publication."

A dollar a year is gain, any activity is employment, and the guild's interpretation of the term "news publication," thanks to the Communists, is such that a typewritten sheet may be so classified.

"The major part of his time" might be an obstacle but for the fact that the Communists do not enforce the requirement on their comrades.

Libya's New Centers

In connection with the colonization program many projects were started in Libya in the past year, according to a Rome report. More than 1,000 farm houses were built in Tripolitania and more than 500 in Cyrenaica. The various public works carried out, from reforestation to the building of aqueducts, are to improve living conditions in the farming centers. Moslem elements are assuming an increasingly active share the agricultural development.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL.

"THE GREAT BOVINE CITY"

Philadelphia, where Wendell Willkie was nominated as the Republican presidential nominee, packed the galleries for the Hoosier utility tycoon in a manner originated by the Republicans in 1860. The galleries did as much for Willkie as they did for Abraham Lincoln, of Illinois. "The Great Bovine City of the World," as the guide books described Chicago, saw its maddest and loudest convention when Lincoln defeated William Seward, who sat waiting in his hotel, his acceptance speech already written. The Republicans should have chosen Chicago this year—for tradition's sake.

In Carl Sandburg's "Prairie Years" one may read of how the "Lincoln shouters," and the astute work of his campaign managers swung the tide to the "Rail Splitter."

Norman Judd, president of the Rock Island Railroad, was one of the backers of Lincoln. He arranged for all those who wished to go to Chicago and shout for Lincoln to obtain low railroad fares. There was no I. C. C. in those days.

Ward Hill Lamon had been to the printers of tickets for seats for spectators at the convention hall. A staff of young men worked all night signing names to the tickets.

The next day, strangely enough, most of those who crowded in were Lincoln shouters. Hardly a Seward man could get into the hall. (One of the Dewey men arose at Philadelphia last week to charge the hall was packed with Willkie men. He was shouted down.)

MORAL FIRE AND WHISKY

Sandburg wrote: "Hour on hour the bulk of the 40,000 strangers in Chicago kept up a shouting and a tumult for Lincoln, for 'Old Abe,' for the 'Rail Candidate.' Judd had fixed it with the railroads so that any shouter who wished to come could set foot in Chicago at a low excursion rate. Men illuminated with moral fire, and also men red-eyed with whisky, yelled and pranced and cut capers and vociferated for Lincoln. They swarmed around the ramshackle convention hall as though they might lift it and carry it a half block and drop it in the Chicago river."

Experts handled the Willkie campaign. It has been written the Willkie workers were neophytes in politics. They were just the office workers.

The Willkie campaign was masterly planned. There are masters of politics behind it. There is money behind it. Even so, it would not have beaten down the Old Guard of the Republican party, which did not want Willkie, had not public opinion been behind him.

LINCOLN'S MANAGERS

Lincoln had experts handling his campaign. Lincoln would agree to no commitments. They were made at the same. Sandburg wrote: "At the Lincoln headquarters in the Tremont House, Davis, DuBois, Sweet, Logan, Oglesby and others were nailing down the Pennsylvania and Indiana delegations for Lincoln. 'We worked like nailers,' said Oglesby. Ray, of the Tribune, came to his chief, McDill. 'We are going to have Indiana for 'Old Abe' sure.' 'How did you get it?' asked McDill. 'By the Lord, we promised them everything they asked.'"

The next prospect was Pennsylvania. Its delegates wished to vote for Simon Cameron, a favorite son, on the first ballot. After that they were willing to swing to Lincoln—for a price. The price was the Treasury Department for Cameron. They wired Lincoln. Lincoln wired back he would authorize no bargains nor be bound by any.

His managers were upset. Davis solved it: "Lincoln ain't here, and don't know what we have to meet, so we will go ahead as if we hadn't heard from him, and he must ratify it."

That night McDill saw Judge Davis coming down the steps. He asked what Pennsylvania would do. "Damned if we haven't got them." "How did you get them?" "By paying their price."

Lincoln had Illinois, Pennsylvania and Indiana solid and some scattering votes from Ohio and other states.

It proved enough. (Cameron's reputation was such Lincoln refused to trust him in the treasury but did make him secretary of war. Later on, in the early days of the war, Cameron was forced to resign under fire.)

WILLKIE'S STRENGTH

It is much too early to say what course Willkie's campaign will take. He is the first Republican nominee, with the possible exception of Teddy Roosevelt, to capture any public fancy. The Republicans have liked their Hardings, Coolidges and others who took directions. This much one may say of Willkie's chances. He has personality. He injects a fresh personality into politics, the first one to match some of the charm of Roosevelt.

He now is favored to carry Ohio, Pennsylvania, and has a chance in New York. Look to the west. There Willkie will win or lose.

The galleries, Philadelphia or Chicago, are important. If well managed.

The Battle Was Lost When the Leader Fell as His Horse Cast A Shoe For Want of a Nail

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

Since everybody's business is nobody's business, it is quite probable that we are overlooking another necessary precaution, for want of which we may find ourselves unable to make weapons when we need them most.

Some days ago the Japanese ambassador asked our State Department why our government had stopped the shipment of machine tools to his country. Apparently he felt little anxiety, for Japan is supposed to have laid in enough machine tools to serve her needs for several years.

Hitler and Mussolini must have taken a similar precaution, for they could not hope to wage a long war without a supply of machine tools or the means of making them.

There is a popular belief that our country is self-sufficient, but in one particular, at least, it is as helpless as any of the others. For the foundation of industry is machine tools, and the hardest steels can be cut only by diamonds.

Without diamonds, no manufacturer can cut the tools for a new model car. Without diamonds we cannot build tanks, airplanes, machineguns or artillery. We cannot even drill an oil well.

These diamonds are not the clear white stones used in jewelry, but dark and ugly things useful only in cutting such hard substances as machine tool steel.

Though some "black diamonds" are mined in Brazil, all but a fraction of the world supply comes from the blue mud of volcanic pits in South Africa. This supply is controlled by a British firm, which thus holds a monopoly of the world's diamonds and keeps the price high by releasing only enough stones to satisfy immediate demand.

Surplus stock is kept in London, and beyond doubt would be one of the first objectives of a successful invasion. It might even be demanded as a ransom to save London from annihilation.

That stock of diamonds should be in Canada or America now. Since it isn't, somebody in authority should arrange to have it moved, by battleship if necessary, the moment invasion of England seems assured.

America cannot save the remnants of democracy, nor become a refuge where free men can build the weapons to recapture their lost civilization, if the wheels of industry stop for want of a few little rocks.

Conservative men still discourage drastic action, but no nation is suffering today because of too much foresight.

OFF THE RECORD—By Ed Reed

by Dudley Glass

Glorious Fourth.

Fourth of July is almost here. Even as I write I can hear the crackers popping across the street. There wasn't any Fourth of July when I was a cracker-popping age. It was just a date on the calendar in our little Deep South village. We shot off our fireworks on Christmas. Many youngsters still do.

Maybe we didn't celebrate the Fourth of July because the wounds of the War Between the States had not healed. I can remember my mother talking about that war as though it had been fought the day before—though many a year had passed and she had been only a little girl when the soldiers came and took everything away. Perhaps we didn't celebrate the Fourth because we thought it a Yankee holiday. We were back in the Union, officially, but not quite at home there. That is, my mother and her friends were not.

We'll observe the Fourth of July Thursday. As a holiday, banks will be closed, shops will be closed. There will be no courts in session, no stock quotations. Many folk will go to the mountains or the shore or just drive as swiftly as possible on crowded highways. Many will play golf. Many will just call it a day off, put on their old hats and loaf. That's all the Fourth is to most of us. Just a day off.

Traitor—Patriots.

The Fourth of July was nothing but a midsummer date in the almanac until something more than 150 years ago. But something happened which made it important. It's a "red letter day" on all the calendars—American calendars—now.

Perhaps because I've been reading a number of historical novels recently I've started thinking about the Fourth of July—and not merely as a day off.

I've been thinking about a pioneer people who became sick and tired of being ruled by a king and parliament across the Atlantic and governors shipped across to boss their local affairs—with the people having no voice no vote. They had to take it and like it, as the modern expression goes. Except they didn't like it—and they made up their minds they wouldn't take it.

They became rebels. Traitors to king and country. That is, they would have been traitors if they'd lost. History now calls them patriots.

I read somewhere in the paper that on Thursday, the Fourth of July, somebody would read, at some celebration or other, a document called the Declaration of Independence.

As I recall it—and I can't find a copy around the house—that document set out the odd theory that all men are created equal and entitled to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Brave words—for those days. And plenty of brave men to back them up, through years of starving and freezing. They had what it took.

Freedom.

I was born free. It has never occurred to me that I could be anything but free.

So I've never really known what freedom and liberty mean. I've never appreciated them, any more than I've properly appreciated and thanked God for the sunshine and the rain and fresh air.

At a little luncheon a few days ago I joined a group of businessmen in a wall of distress over taxes. Corporation taxes, income taxes, all kinds of taxes. I was complaining because I'd have to pay more for a package of cigars.

Taxes are pretty tough. Nobody wants to pay taxes. We know the various governments must collect money to pay for this and that, a lot of it spent most injudiciously. But we hate to pay our share.

But, getting back to the Fourth of July, the taxes we pay we imposed on ourselves—through our representatives in congress and the legislature and other bodies.

At least, they were not imposed on us by a king and parliament across the ocean.

Courage?

From what we read in the papers and hear over the radio there seems to be little liberty in Europe just now.

England—our tyrant foe of more than 150 years ago—is holding out bulldoggedly and we're all with her in spirit. If that helps any.

But France, which once arose against a rotten royalty in a revolution which made ours look like a picnic, is now bowing in submission to the German Hitler.

An American author recently wrote a book called "It Can't Happen Here," in which he set out to prove it can.

Maybe so. But I don't believe it. We may have been lax in preparedness. We may have become too complacent.

We may have become too soft, through a century and a half of independence—freedom—liberty whichever you prefer.

But I refuse to believe that all the courage in these United States died with Washington and Jefferson.

I think I'll look up that newspaper item and go hear that Declaration of Independence read Thursday—the Fourth of July. I think it would be a fine time for all the millions of folks of this nation hear it—and take a little time to think about it.

Building Activities Set 11-Year Record

The largest half-year's building activity in the past 11 years was recorded yesterday when Charles J. Bowen, city building inspector, released figures showing that 1,745 building permits were issued for the first six months of 1940, and were valued at $8,240,201.

Permits issued through June 1939, were valued at $8,602,281, although only 1,680 permits were issued for that period.

The permits for the first six months of 1940 were more than three times the value of the 1,429 permits issued for the corresponding period of 1939.

War Against Men's Souls

By DOROTHY THOMPSON.

Attending the Republican convention was one of the strangest experiences of my life. I sat in the convention hall, and as I listened and watched, and as I sat with delegates and overheard snatches of conversation I felt moments of black despair. Let us speak to each other with candor, as between friends. I did not like some of what I saw and overheard.

Day by day and hour by hour there is being telegraphed to us news of a human world whose face is being destroyed. The world is being destroyed by faceless men, possessed with unhuman weapons, trained to unhuman exploits. What we are seeing is a war against mankind in the truest and most prophetic sense of the word. It is not that men's bodies are being killed. That is the least of it. We all shall die some day, whether by a bomb or by diabetes or cancer. The body of man is mortal. It is unfortunate that our education does not remind us constantly of that prime reality.

But in this terrible war against mankind the soul of man is being destroyed. This is no war with ordinary weapons. It is not even describable as a war with the extraordinary weapons of modern science and mechanics. It is a war waged with every form of wickedness. It is a war in which every human instinct, every godlike urge in men is being perverted.

But France, which once arose against a rotten royalty in a revolution which made ours look like a picnic, is now bowing in submission to the German Hitler.

An American author recently wrote a book called "It Can't Happen Here," in which he set out to prove it can.

Maybe so. But I don't believe it. We may have been lax in preparedness. We may have become too complacent.

We may have become too soft, through a century and a half of independence—freedom—liberty whichever you prefer.

But I refuse to believe that all the courage in these United States died with Washington and Jefferson.

I think I'll look up that newspaper item and go hear that Declaration of Independence read Thursday—the Fourth of July. I think it would be a fine time for all the millions of folks of this nation hear it—and take a little time to think about it.

today one stutters to use the word "race," lest one be allied with the persecutors or the persecuted, with the supermen who have lost their faces, or with the subhumans whose faces are a print of fear. Should not one be proud to be a German of the stock of Goethe and of Luther, of the race which possesses, perhaps of all races in Europe, the most universal imagination? But the pure-hearted German hardly dares mention it, for he flinches to see his neighbor flinch.

The faceless have made into an almost exact science the black magic religion of the disintegration of the soul. They have studied and made into a precise technique the myriad ways in which men can be rendered afraid—the employee afraid of his employer, the employer afraid of the man, the man afraid of the woman, the Aryan afraid of the Jew, the Jew afraid of the mass, the mass afraid of the individual, leaderships afraid of the people, and the people afraid of leadership.

Thus is mankind looted of its freedom. Man is robbed of it in his own soul. For who is free? Only he who is without fear. If he is afraid of his dividends he is very craven indeed and very basely enslaved; if he is afraid for his life, he is living in illusion, for his life is on lease and the lease will most certainly expire; but if he is afraid of his neighbor, he lives in panic, and cannot hold his head erect.

Listen! In Europe this spring and summer I saw faces, human faces. On them I saw only one look: Fear. It was not fear of the enemy across some no-man's-land. It was fear of the comrade at one's own side! What was his comrade thinking? To what secret party or band or cult might his comrade belong? If he lay asleep in the night at his comrade's side, whose bayonet might be driven into his breast? Thus, before men could stand together, they must lock their neighbors into concentration camps!

The title of the above description is How to Lose a War or How to Lose a Peace.

In Europe I talked with people—all sorts and conditions of people, in many countries. When they spoke of "America" something happened to those fear-stricken faces. A light came into them. Do you know what they think of America in Europe? They do not talk about our prosperity; they do not talk about our great natural resources; they do not mention the Ford plant, the du Pont works, the George Washington bridge, the Grand Canyon or Niagara Falls. America to them is a dream; a sort of earthly heaven; a Kingdom of God—because they believe it is a place where no man is afraid of another. You have a long border and not a fort on it, they say. "That is a miracle of God." All sorts of races live together in America and you do not kill and persecute each other. They say, "That is a miracle of God."

America, beautiful, that is true, and that is your destiny, to create a world where men are not afraid of each other. Just that and nothing more. Just that and everything else will follow. But at a public school in New York a fortnight ago, gangs of big boys were taking Jewish children one by one and stripping them and putting their heads in the toilet. Yes, America, beautiful, here, in New York. And on our ships, captains are afraid of their crews—and crews are afraid of their captains. And among our big men of industry there are those who are saying, "My, but I bet wrong on this war. The Allies are going to lose, and what of our investments over there?"

And the faceless come oozing in to them and say, "How about it, boys, want to make a deal?"

Which leads me to the Republican convention. (Have patience. I am getting around to the point.) It was scared.

And because it was scared, not a single honest, truthful, brave, uplifting word came out of that convention to a waiting, palpitating world. Mouth-mouth words and mealy-mouthed words. I saw Frank Gannett's headquarters sign: "Vote for Gannett and Defeat the New Deal." (How scared you must be. Mr. Gannett. The New Deal is dead. You are mobilizing against a corpse; you are afraid of ghosts.) A platform, neatly carpentered of the usual planks designed to capture the labor vote, the farm vote, the rich man's vote, the poor man's vote, designed to keep us out of war and leave it open for us to make a deal.

Designed to get us all the armaments we may need without their costing any one anything. Designed on the assumption that the way to keep people calm is to soothe them with fairy stories.

Listen, convention, the American people have come of age. We are grown up. We know what's what. We're not afraid of Europe, of ships coming over across the sea, of parachutists dropping into Brooklyn. We are only afraid of the type of mind that thinks you mustn't mention certain things because if you do you will anger the devil. Did you ever hear the phrase, "Tell the truth and shame the devil?" Or the one, "Know the truth and the truth will set you free?"

We are past recrimination and name-calling, and rubbing one's forefinger on another and crying, "Shame, shame, double shame." That doesn't get us anywhere. We know that, at long last. But we aren't falling for the success story either. And don't any of you put my money on it if you have any sense. "Tell the truth and shame the devil!" Or the one, "Know the truth and the truth will set you free?"

We are past recrimination and name-calling, and rubbing one's forefinger on another and crying, "Shame, shame, double shame." That doesn't get us anywhere. We know that, at long last. But we aren't falling for the success story either. And don't any of you put my money on it if you have any sense. "Tell the truth and shame the devil!" Or the one, "Know the truth and the truth will set you free?"

your own advertisements. You don't base confidence on fear.

Wendell Wilkie was nominated, although hardly any one in that convention wanted him, at first. The people of America nominated Wendell Wilkie. It was a tidal wave.

Was he nominated on the wave of "Let's be realists and make a deal?" Was he nominated on the wave of "We had better adjust ourselves to Hitler's world, as the surest way of keeping out of war?"

(Oh, America, learn from others. There is no security except in yourself. There is no security except in your own free soul. Do nothing, America, that insults your soul. If you do, you will surely die.)

Or was he nominated on that other wave: "Save America! Save her for the destiny for which she was born; save her as the New World, the world where nobody is afraid of his neighbor; where neither for the love of riches or the fear of poverty shall we make compromise with your mission?"

I think it was the latter wave that carried him to the candidacy. I believe that is the wave on which he will ride. I believe it, because I know him, and have heard him say the things that so desperately need to be said. The things that are said with the soul as well as with the mind.

But they will make it hard for you, Wendell Wilkie. The men who want to defeat something or other more than they want to save America. The men who are bringing the faceless ones into our midst. They are all for you, now. Wendell Wilkie—the men who hold up the Christian cross and make it into a symbol of fear! The men who marry the cross to the swastika, in unholy union. They speak in the name of Jesus of Nazareth and plan his crucifixion.

They do not read the words of the One whose name they take in vain. They do not remember that He said, "And I, if I be lifted up from the earth, will draw all men unto me."

Do not let them make your standard into a standard of terror and fear, Wendell Wilkie.

We have great hopes in you. (Copyright, 1940, for The Constitution.)

Good Morning—By Louie D. Newton

"What is the secret of Dr. Truett's power as a preacher?" is a question on many tongues in this part of the south, so many people having heard his sermons Sunday, and many having read the sermon in Monday's Constitution. Over the period of 25 years that I have known the man intimately, I believe I have heard a thousand people ask that question.

They go on to say that they give full allowance to his powerful personality, his unrivaled voice, his surpassing fervor of spirit, his wide knowledge of history and literature, his ability to quote the Scriptures, and so on and so forth, and yet ask if there may not yet be some secret of the man's power above and beyond these rare and fascinating characteristics.

I venture to answer this question by suggesting that it is Dr. Truett's utter abandon to the will of God and his unflinching appeal to his hearers to join him in this commanding commitment of every resource of life to the plan and purpose of God.

I beg you to observe the man in the light of this suggested answer to the question of the secret of his power. Apply his answer as you listen to him preach this morning at 11 o'clock, if you are fortunate enough to hear him, or this evening at 8 o'clock. Apply this suggestion as you read the sermon in today's Constitution.

I have studied Dr. Truett from the time I first saw him and heard him in 1909. I was captivated by the man that day in Louisville, Ky., when, as a mere boy, I went early to the Walnut Street Baptist meeting house to get a good seat. I studied him that morning as he came into the pulpit. I shall never forget how I said to myself: "There is a man of God." And then when he arose to preach, I remember how he said:

"I have come here today but for one purpose—that to seek and follow the will of God, and I cast myself upon your most prayerful support." Since that day in 1909, I judge I have heard him preach several hundred times, and that first impression has deepened upon me, namely, here is a man of God bent upon doing His will at all times and at all costs. He takes no counsel of his fears, no suggestion of his difficulties. He is fixed in his heart to do the will of God. And that, my friends, explains Dr. Truett's power, just as it explains every man and woman of lasting constructive power in this and every age.

Jesus said: "I am come to do the will of My Father." Again: "My Master's will to do, His will to do; through all my days, Lord, Thy will to do." Selah.

Talmadge Group Will Meet Tonight

The newly formed Fulton County Talmadge-for-Governor Club will meet on the roof garden of the Ansley hotel at 8 o'clock tonight, according to Charles Bruce, president.

Dempsey Blasts Luttrell From Ring in 2d With Savage Attack

Dempsey Fit The big moment for the crowd arrived at 10:15 p. m. at Ponce de Leon park. Jaunty Dempsey, wearing a blue bathrobe, strode rough the crowd to the ring. Ringsiders were amazed at his seeming fitness.

"Why, he's not the old man in the ring tonight. It is at him Luttrell," observers opined.

The partly bald Luttrell looked much older and much less shape than did the big-shouldered Dempsey. If anybody were a "rubber tire" it was Luttrell.

As the strident voice of the announcer pierced the night air, a crowd of around 10,000 got a supreme thrill. "Jack Dempsey, former world's heavy-weight champion and the most popular sports figure of the day."

A tremendous ovation lasted for a minute. Dempsey immediately took the offensive, crowded Luttrell into a corner and patted him with lefts and rights. Luttrell could do nothing more than stand there and take it. Dempsey moved Luttrell around into another corner and filed away at what virtually was a defenseless target.

At the bell, ending the first round, Luttrell was staggered the fierce barrage of lefts and rights, heavy head punches at steady attack to the body.

Self Preservation

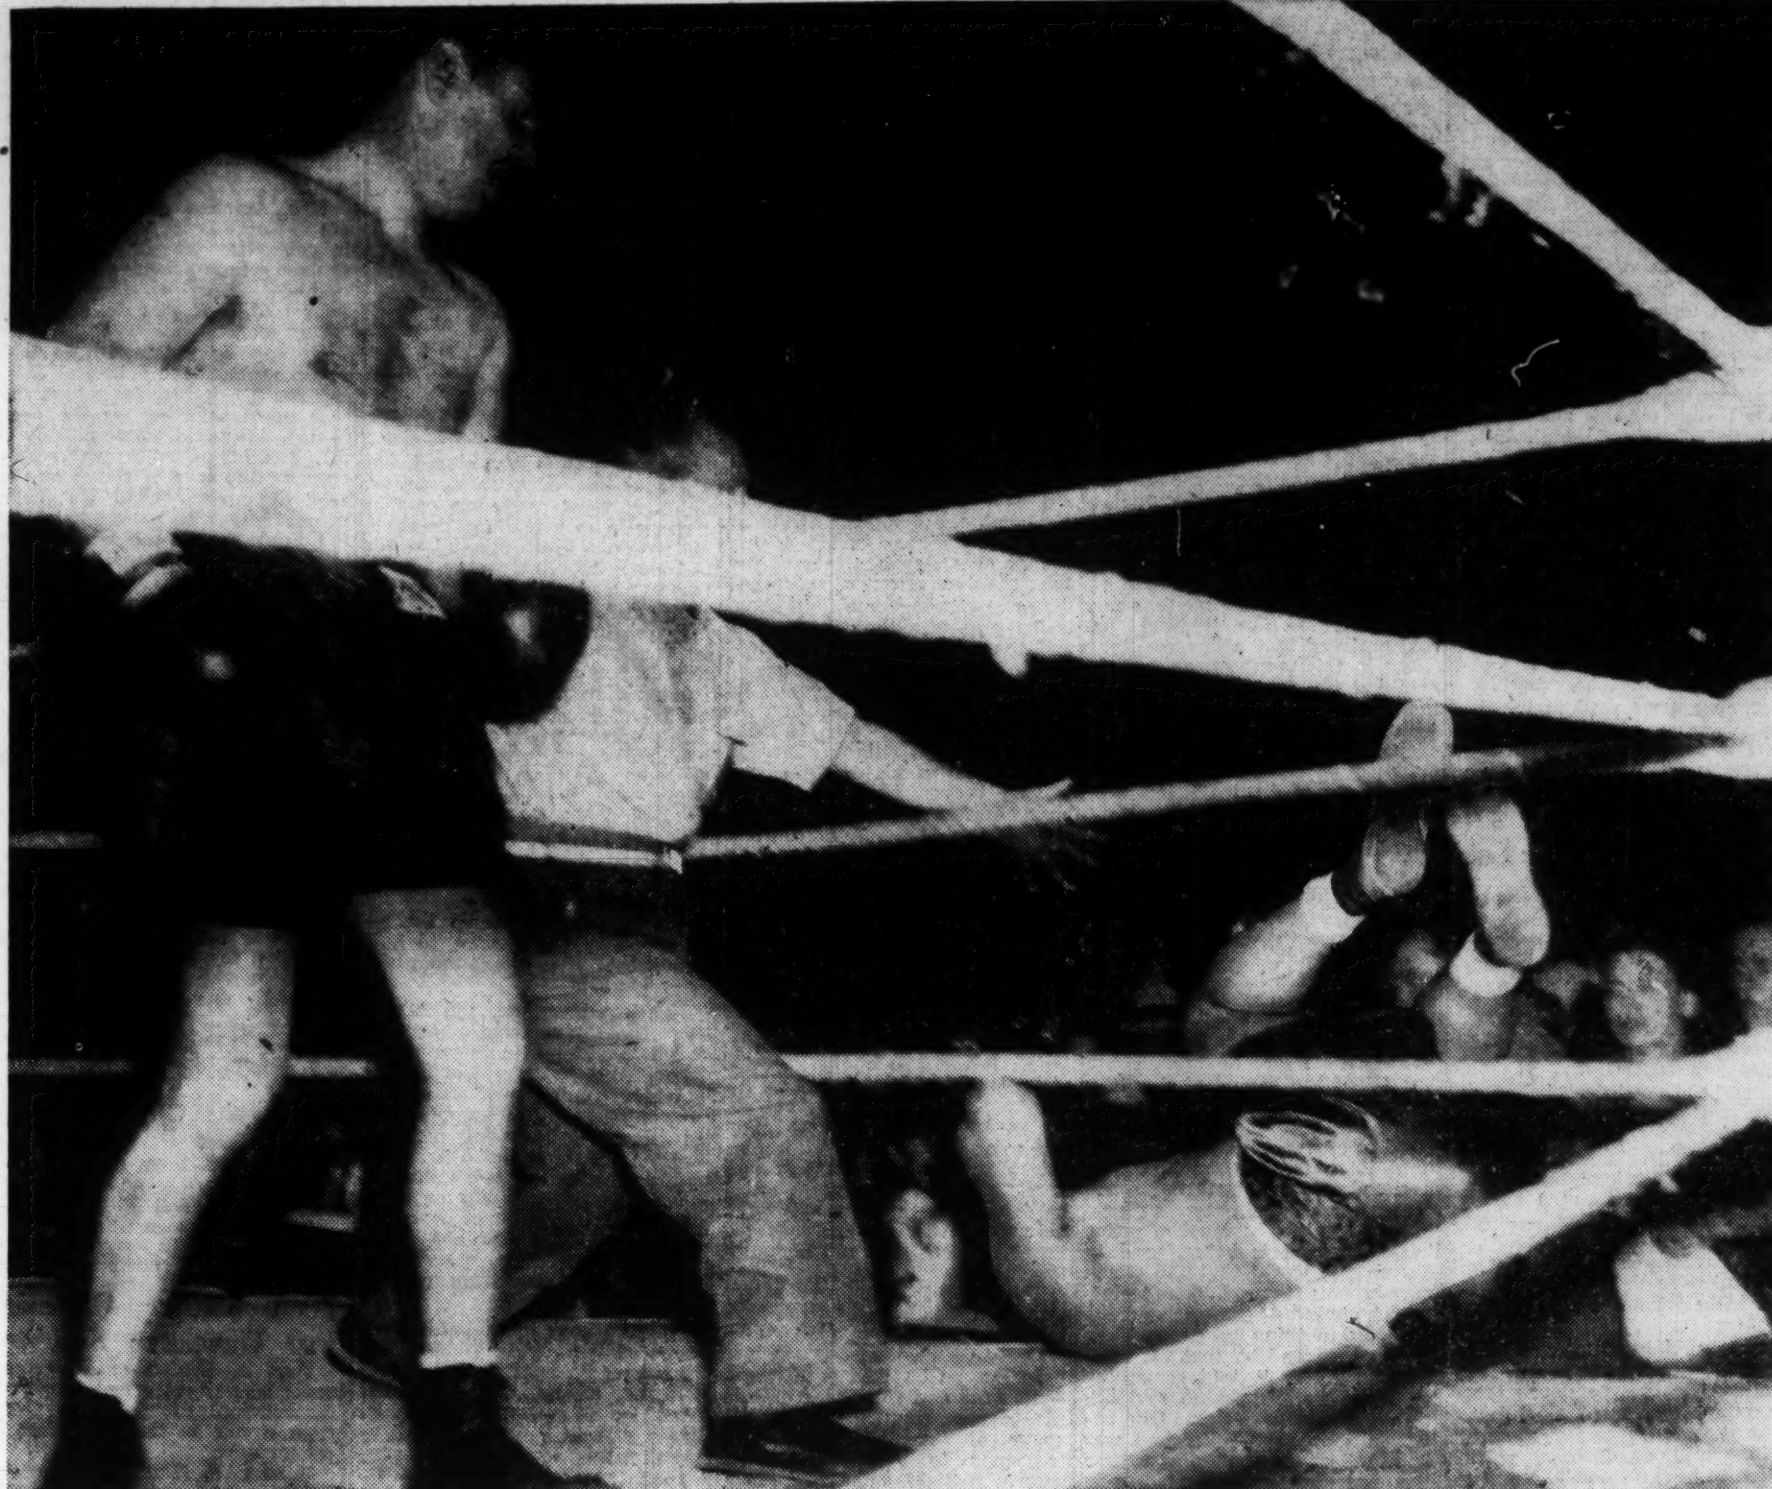

It was a matter of self-preservation for Luttrell in the second round. He hit Dempsey with a punch to the chin. But it only served to infuriate Dempsey who put the cowboy on the floor midway of the round. Luttrell went down once, and twice.

And the third time Luttrell was knocked completely out of the ring. The old killer instinct was asserted beyond the wildest expectation of the throng.

Dempsey did not hesitate to finish Luttrell. His big bad cowboy opponent was helpless as Dempsey put in the finishing blow, a right such as the one that Firpo might have landed in knocking Dempsey out of the ring that time.

While the crowd was just about half as excited—it ran around 10,000—it was truly a satisfied crowd. The amazing Dempsey proved a clown—and a killer—about as much as he ever was in his heyday. They had carry Luttrell away minutes after the knockout. He was

THE FINISH—Jack Dempsey has just landed a terrific right and Cowboy Luttrell is shown crashing out of the ring in the second round of last night's fistic encounter at Ponce de Leon park. The sensational knockout occurred in 1 minute and 58 seconds of the second round. Luttrell, weighing 224 pounds, sailed out of the ring under the impetus of a crashing right which followed two devastating lefts. It sent him to Crawford Long hospital, where he remained under observation all last night. Close to 10,000 people saw the slaughter.

Mauler Drops Cowboy Twice Before Finish

Ex-Champ Cuts Wrestler to Shreds as Throng Cheers Madly.

By THAD HOLT.
Jack Dempsey, a 45-year-old punching fool possessed with all the savagery and relentless fury of the Manassa Mauler of old, last night brought back memories of the days when he ruled the heavyweights of the world with a smashing two-round knockout of Cowboy Luttrell, a 224-pound Texas bull.

Stalking his prey from the opening gong, the old warrior may have battered his way back into the heavyweight title picture as

After taking the beating of his life last night from Jack Dempsey, Cowboy Luttrell was admitted to Crawford Long hospital here still unconscious. He regained consciousness at 11:35, approximately an hour after the end of the fight.

Hospital attaches said his mouth was badly battered and bleeding. His face and jaws were cut and bruised, and a nose fracture was probable. The 224-pound wrestler remained at the hospital for observation during the night.

he turned loose a murderous attack on the huge wrestler that left Luttrell senseless and the crowd gasping in amazement.

Contrary to pictures painted by crepe hangers before the fight, Dempsey was not fat. And he was not clumsy. Instead, fans saw a trim, tigerish Dempsey, lacking the speed of his golden days, but still perhaps the most dangerous fighter in the business, outside of the Brown Bomber.

SIZZLING BLOWS.
Scowling as of yore, Dempsey tore out after the cowboy at the first bell. He landed a light left and a sizzling right to Luttrell's head that must have let the Texan know he was in for a bad evening. Luttrell kept his promise. He made a fight of it. In close, he ripped hard blows to Jack's stom-

Galento 9-to-5 Choice To Beat Baer Tonight

Odds on Tony Increase After He Suffers Cut on Chin.

By JACK CUDDY.
JERSEY CITY, N. J., July 1.—(UP)—In complete harmony with the screwball background of tomorrow night's "battle of bums" between Tony Galento and Maxie Baer, odds favoring Galento lengthened to 9-5 today after it became known that Tony suffered a cut on his chin when he lost his first decision to a beer stein.

Pricemaker Eddie Borden was as mystified as boxing writers over the increased backing for the wounded fat man that lifted the odds from 8-5 to 9-5.

Meanwhile Galento, the Jersey jumbo, sported adhesive tape, but no stitches, on the cut as he did his morning roadwork and afternoon limbering exercises at an Orange, N. J., gymnasium. He scaled 239 pounds, one more than he expects to register at the weigh-in tomorrow noon. Baer took a brisk walk this morning at Pompton Lakes, N. J., and loaded the rest of the day. The Livermore Lothario weighed 215.

Promoter Mike Jacobs, who almost swallowed his store teeth when he first heard of the chin-cutting episode at Galento's saloon in Orange, said the affair had stimulated the ticket sale. He is confident of a $160,000 gate and a crowd of 30,000.

The 15-round burlesque of bop between the ring's two foremost clowns, celebrates the 19th anniversary of the first $1,000,000 fight between Jack Dempsey and Georges Carpentier, which was staged at Jersey City on Boyle's Thirty Acres, July 2, 1921. That international engagement drew $1,789,238. Boyle's Thirty Acres, now a high school athletic park, is three miles northeast of Roosevelt stadium. The distance between Dempsey-Carpentier and Galento-Baer is much greater.

Chill at Box Office Looms For Major All-Star Game

Domination of Squads by New York and Brooklyn Players Fails To Click With Critics.

NEW YORK, July 1.—(UP)—Domination of the All-Star squads by New York and Brooklyn players today seemed likely to cause a serious chill at the box office when the major leagues play their eighth annual midsummer classic at Sportsman's park, St. Louis, next Tuesday.

The two squads picked by the eight managers in their respective leagues show 18 of the 50 players from Greater New York's three major league clubs. The Yanks placed seven men on the American League team and the Dodgers six and the Giants five on the National League club. St. Louis, host city, placed just three men on both teams—Johnny Mize and Terry Moore from the Cardinals on the National League club and George McQuinn from the Browns on the American League entry.

The selection of the New York players wouldn't be so bad if they rated it. If the players are picked on 1940 performance, as they should be, then Bill Dickey and Joe Gordon don't belong and there's some question whether Charlie Keeler deserves ranking ahead of Barney McCosky, of the Tigers. Dickey is hitting a mere .220 and has made only two hits in his last 23 times at bat. Birdie Tebbetts, of the Tigers, who's hitting .307 and doing a great job of catching, certainly belongs on the club ahead of Dickey. Don Heffner, of the Browns, and Bobby Doerr, of the Red Sox, have been playing better all-round ball than Gordon, who is hitting only .250.

Shortstop Billy Jurges, of the Giants, who is hitting only .247 and still convalescing from being struck on the head by a pitched ball, hardly deserves rating above the Bees' Eddie Miller, who's hitting .305 and playing stellar ball in the field. Leo Durocher, Brooklyn manager, who considers himself the third-string shortstop on his own club, hardly deserves a berth. Whit Wyatt, with a 7-and-6 record, is a questionable choice. And how could they pass up Dixie Walker, who's clouting .344 for the Dodgers? Or is Dixie's American League service enough to blackball him?

Another notable absentee from the American League team is Ray Radcliff, of the Browns, who's hitting .365. His record of 34 runs clouted in compares favorably with DiMaggio (38), Keller (38), Cramer (23), and Finney (31) some of the men picked.

On the basis of the men picked, the American League seems to have a definite edge both offensively and defensively. The American League squad has a combined batting average of .294, has driven

Mungo Undergoes Operation on Arm

PHILADELPHIA, July 1.—(AP)—Van Lingle Mungo sent word to Manager Leo Durocher, of the Brooklyn Dodgers, today that he had undergone an operation on his right shoulder at Johns Hopkins hospital in Baltimore.

The big pitcher, who for years, stood on the threshold of baseball greatness and never quite got across, was voluntarily retired by the Dodgers last week and immediately announced he would go to Baltimore for an examination by Dr. George Bennett.

In 645 runs and hit 124 homers as compared with the National League's batting average of .293, 554 runs batted in and 39 homers. In pitching the American Leaguers have scored 58 victories and lost 29 times as compared with 52 victories and 41 defeats for the National Leaguers.

COWBOY "OUT"—This shot shows Cowboy Luttrell as he looked after Jack Dempsey had knocked him out of the ring. He was unconscious when the picture was snapped. In fact, Luttrell did not regain consciousness for more than an hour after the fight when he was admitted to Crawford Long hospital with a probable fracture of the nose and badly cut features.

ach and chin. He was a power in the clinches. But the Manassa Mauler was out to prove to an ever-admiring, but skeptical, fight world that he was no ghost of a former champion, that he needed no pity and that in those big fists still hang destruction.

The more Luttrell tried to batter Jack, the harder did Dempsey fight.

Dempsey drove a terrific right to Luttrell's head, breaking his nose and bringing crimson from the cowboy. As the first round ended, Luttrell was leaning on the ropes, still on his feet, still taking punishment that would have felled an ox.

Sensing the kill, Dempsey tore out in the second round, but it was soon apparent that Luttrell wasn't through. He roughed Dempsey in the clinches and got in two body blows that must have hurt the idol of millions. One of the Cowboy's blows was low, apparently deliberately low, and brought a stern warning from Referee Nat Fleischer. That was the beginning of the end for Luttrell. The Mauler's left floored him for a count of eight.

SHOOT THE WORKS.

Here it was that Dempsey shot the works, cutting loose with the most deadly two-fisted attack ever witnessed, perhaps, in an Atlanta ring. A left hook brought Luttrell's feet up off the floor and sent him flat on his back for a count of six. Like a big cat the Mauler was after him. Another staggering left knocked Luttrell unconscious, spinning him into Dempsey's corner. You could see Cowboy's eyes turn glassy. Like a flash, Dempsey

Tommy Barnes Fires 70, Leads Griffin's Meet

GRiffin, Ga., July 1.—Tommy Barnes, Atlanta, led the field after the first day of qualifying in the annual Griffin Invitation golf tournament here today with a two-under-par 70. Barnes went out in 36 and needed only 34 strokes coming in.

Defending Champion Gene Gailard, also of Atlanta, was only one stroke back with a 71.

Bob Cheatham and Guy Halsten, two Griffin golfers, shot 73s, while Richey Hanberry, Macon, had a 75, and P. H. Wray, also of Macon, carded a 79.

Qualifying will continue today and Wednesday, with match play starting Thursday, July 4.

Hoke Cooley, pro at the local course, said that 60 golfers were entered in the meet.

Love and Towns Win Blind Pig Sweepstakes

Hoyt Love and Ross Towns won the weekly Blind Pig Sweepstakes bowled on the downtown alleys as they turned in a combined count of 1,216 to pace the field of contestants. Elizabeth Garrison and Charlie Wright were runners-up with a total of 1,181.

whipped across a smashing right that sent the Texan crashing out through the ropes into the press row.

It was useless, but Referee Fleischer counted the fatal ten. The colorful crowd let out a deafening roar, cheering madly for Jack Dempsey for fully five minutes. They came to see the Mauler punch. They hadn't expected a Dempsey so savage.

Dempsey, apparently elated at his showing, happy that his punch had not deserted him, paid tribute to Luttrell for his ruggedness and gameness.

"I thought," said Jack, "that I was in there with Firpo again, Luttrell is a very tough, very dangerous man."

"I am glad to have won and I am proud it was a good fight and that no one was disappointed."

LUTTRELL BUTCHERED.
One minute and fifty eight seconds had elapsed in the second round when the end came.

Six minutes later, still lifeless, Luttrell, his nose broken, his lips riddled, one eye nearly closed, was carried to his dressing room by Milo Steinborn, his trainer.

Through puffed lips he murmured in a hospital here many minutes later—"I didn't know it was possible for a human being to hit so hard, but I tried, didn't I?" He asked almost pathetically of his handlers. They all nodded in the affirmative. No one could disagree with Luttrell, for once he stood up and fought like a man.

Officials estimated the crowd paid $20,000 to see the show, but said no official figures would be available before tomorrow.

Flock Scores Six in Fourth; Sherer Stars

Hurls Eight Scoreless Innings and Gets Three Singles.

NEW ORLEANS, La., July 1.—Snapping into an aggressive, heads-up attitude, the Pelicans looked real good tonight at Pelican Stadium when they downed the Atlanta Crackers, 11 to 4, before a knothole gang crowd. Al Sherer not only pitched fine ball, but he led a steady Pelican offense with three singles and the Pels cashing in on the wildness of three Cracker hurlers, the birds coasted home.

Though wild in a couple of innings, Sherer really should not have been scored on. Umpire Howard Camp, a member of Major Scott's "finest" staff of umpires, missed the bus on a play during the Crackers' third-inning rally. With one out Glock walked, Anderson singled and Mailho walked. Marshall smashed a liner into center. It looked as if Gillenwater would catch it, but he didn't. Instead he picked it up on first bound and lined it to the plate on a perfect peg.

PELS PROTEST.

Catcher Bremer caught the ball while standing on the plate and Glock slid into him, upsetting him. Camp called Glock safe, undoubtedly because he had not been tagged. It was a perfect force play. Had Glock slid in ahead of the ball, he would have upset Bremer and the catcher could not have caught the ball. As it was, he had the ball a fraction of a second before Glock slid in and piled him up. The Pels protested loudly, but to no avail. Bremer then dropped a play at the plate to let another Cracker run in and two more enemy runs scored when Burge singled cleanly.

Outside of that inning Sherer hurled scoreless ball. Larry Miller got the Pels out in their opening round but when they scored a run off him in the second it was apparent he lacked his stuff. Three singles, a wild pitch and a base on balls should have accounted for more than one run, but they didn't.

Instead, they convinced Paul Richards Miller was through. So, Charlie Burgess hit for Miller in Atlanta's third and though he registered one out, he opened an inning which proved disastrous for the locals. Glock walked, Anderson singled and Mailho walked, filling the sacks. Marshall singled to center, Glock scoring. Hill hit to first and Anderson was safe at home when Bremer dropped the throw. Suydam popped out but Burge came through with a single and scored Marshall and Mailho. Richards was walked to get at Burgess, who struck out.

Like Miller, Burgess enjoyed one good inning against the Pels. And then he faded out. He mixed in three bases on balls with two singles and two two-baggers and the Pelicans scored six runs in their fourth. Wayman Kerkiseck going in with two out and a man on base and retiring Gillenwater, who had started the inning.

KERKISECK WILD.

Still operating on the skip-stop system, Kerkiseck got by the fifth in good shape and then grew wild in the seventh and the Pels scored twice on a two-bagger, two walks, a scratch hit and a sacrifice fly. A base on balls, an error and a single put three on for Atlanta in the seventh with just one out, but Burge and Richards went out on short outfield flies. Then the Pels added two more runs in their half of seventh on a single, a sacrifice hit, an error and two singles.

The Pelicans played one game tonight. The game played out at 7:45 to allow the Crackers a chance to catch an early train back to Atlanta.

Turpin Is Dead In Hollywood At Age of 71

Funny Man With Crossed Eyes Began in Movies in 1914.

HOLLYWOOD, July 1.—(P)—Ben Turpin, the funny little guy with the crossed eyes who always maintained he could do a "108" better than anybody else, died today.
He was 71 years old, although kindly biographers through the years made him six years younger. A "108" is a somersault from a standing—still start. Ben made such somersaults, and himself, famous because he didn't come out of them on his feet as others did. He always fell on his face or his head or some other unconventional part of his wily body.
"Look, I'll show you," he said one day in the den of his modest home a few years ago. "I'll show you I don't get hurt." He stood up, flipped his feet over his head and landed on his face. He came up smiling.
Ben started in the movies more than a quarter of a century ago, at the old Essanay studio in Chicago. He had been in burlesque and vaudeville when Bronco Billy Anderson began making pictures. Ben's first film starred Charlie Chaplin. Charlie knocked Ben all over the studio with two-by-fours. And props weren't made of balsa wood in those days, either.
Ben came west about 1914 and soon he was working in Mack Sennett's Keystone comedies. Little is known about Mrs. Turpin; she stayed in the background.

HIS TASK TOUGH, FRIENDS SAY—Senator William B. Bankhead, speaker of the house of representatives and Tallulah's father, readies the speech he'll make opening the Democratic national convention July 15 in Chicago. The tall Alabamian must answer Republican criticism and make a resounding report on the administration's achievements. As gavel-wielder in the house, he has little chance to speak. As Democratic keynoter, however, he says, "I want to give the truth about some of these national issues."

Marine Insurance Plan Is Set Up by U. S. Law

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt today signed a bill to establish a marine war risk insurance system and asked congress for $50,000,000 to underwrite it.

The plan, long advocated by the Maritime Commission, is designed as a "buffer" against any inability of ship operators to obtain insurance on reasonable terms and conditions from the private insurance market.

Willkie Blasted By Democrats For 'Disunity'

Speaker Bankhead Calls Republican Candidates 'Weird Combination.'

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—Democrats denounced Wendell L. Willkie today as a "champion of disunity" and said they could beat him "easily"—statements which stirred the Republican presidential nominee to say that they "must have the jitters."
Political speechmaking and comments rolled out from Capitol Hill immediately upon the re-convening of congress after the recess for the Philadelphia Republican convention.
Senator Pepper, Democrat, Florida, told the senate that Willkie was a "master of political blitzkrieg" who remained in the "shadow of his hollid and monied precincts" while other candidates for the Republican nomination stumped the country. The nominee, Pepper asserted, employed "disunity" methods in attempting to block the Tennessee Valley Authority program.
Representative Doughton, Democrat, North Carolina, predicting an easy defeat of Willkie, said "the reason the Republicans didn't nominate a Republican was that they didn't want one of their own number beaten." (Willkie supported the election of President Roosevelt in 1932.)
Speaker Bankhead, who will deliver the keynote address at the Democratic national convention, said the Republican ticket of Willkie and Senator Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, was a "weird combination," contending that McNary's record was in conflict with what Willkie "has always stood for."
Pepper demanded that Willkie say at once what foreign policy he believed the country should follow.

Navy Contracts For Biggest Lot Of Battleships

plane tender—193,000 tons of warships. This brought to 150 the number of vessels now under construction or soon to be started. Additional contracts are to be awarded shortly for three airplane carriers and two more cruisers.

Projects in Georgia.

Included in the military post expansion bill was $15,000,000 authorizing construction, rehabilitation and installations at these posts:

Anchorage, Alaska, $6,379,225; Hawaii, Schofield barracks, $823,200; Fort Shafter, $90,000; Panama, Fort Clayton, $512,075; Corozal, $1,071,300; Panama Canal defense, $365,500; Puerto Rico, Borinquen field, $571,000; Puerto Rican general depot, $45,000; Aberdeen Proving Ground, Md., $210,000; Atlanta General Depot, Ga., $1,300,000; Fort Belvoir, Va., $60,000; Fort Benning, Ga., $1,320,500; Edgewood Arsenal, Md., $432,476; Fort Sam Houston, Texas, $277,200; Fort Knox, Ky., $153,124; Fort Lewis, Wash., $255,000; Fort McPherson, Ga., $65,000; Fort Myer, Va., $84,000; Fort Monroe, Va., $179,500; Philadelphia Quartermasters' Depot, $314,000; Picatinny Arsenal, N. J., $23,000; Fort Pickens, Fla., $48,200; Fort Sill, Okla., $96,000; Fort Story, Va., $25,000; West Point, $299,000.

Land Acquisitions.

The second appropriation bill would authorize these acquisitions of land at a total cost of $3,500,000. Antiaircraft training and firing center, Savannah, Ga., 525,000 acres; Big Bethel water development, Fort Monroe, 41 acres; Camp Custer, Mich., 6,126 acres; Great Salt Lake basin, Utah, 3,000 acres; Fort Sill, 13,378 acres.

The Savannah development is to be operated by the coast artillery, which planned periodic training for personnel regularly stationed at other posts. It was said only temporary buildings would be constructed at the training center and little equipment would be kept there.

No specific site had been selected, officers said, adding that only a general location was intended when the Savannah area was specified in the bill.

(War Department plans called for no land purchases at Savannah for two years, but Representative Hugh Peterson Jr., Democrat, Georgia, said that he expects some land may be bought immediately, possibly with the "blank check" money to be spent at President Roosevelt's discretion, the United Press said.)

The navy contracts were negotiated without competitive bidding as authorized by the new speed-up legislation. The new act also permits the President to increase the work-week in shipyards above 48 hours.

Speeds Production.

Officials estimated that the elimination of the competitive bidding requirement would save $16,000,000 to $17,000,000 on the contracts let today and that the time required to build a vessel could be reduced 20 per cent if full 24-hour shifts were used.

Senator Connally, Democrat, Texas, introduced a resolution during the day which would make it the sense of the senate that the War and Navy Departments insist upon contractors using extra shifts.

"Time is of the essence," he said in a statement. "Plenty of labor is available. The program affords an excellent opportunity to train semi-skilled labor into the highest character of skilled labor."

Mr. Roosevelt signed another bill giving the Maritime Commission authority to insure and reinsure American vessels against war risks, the United Press said. At the same time he asked Congress for a $50,000,000 revolving fund to administer the act.

He also approved legislation permitting the commission to maintain in good condition all merchant ships "essential to defense" which are laid up due to neutrality law restrictions.

Companies Set Up.

The rubber and tin will be purchased by separate corporations which the RFC set up Friday, Jesse H. Jones, federal loan administrator, announced. They were capitalized at $5,000,000 each. Authority for their creation was contained in an act which the President signed last Tuesday.

(The Reconstruction Finance Corporation will own half the stock in the rubber company and all that in the metals company, the United Press said. Manufacturers will acquire the remainder of the rubber stock. In the case of the metals company, it was explained that most of the metals manufacturers have sufficient supplies of tin to last at least a year and therefore they will not take any of the metal stock until and when their resources are low.)

The rubber company has agreed with the International Rubber Regulation Committee to buy 150,000 tons at 18 to 20 cents a pound, two cents below today's market price.

The tin company has agreed with the International Tin Committee to purchase 75,000 tons at 50 cents a pound. It also will acquire manganese and other strategic raw materials.

(Sidney Hillman, Labor member of the President's Advisory Defense Commission, announced that vocational training for the defense industries will be started immediately with 150,000 workers, 50,000 of whom will come from WPA rolls, according to the United Press. The program will be financed by $9,781,340 from the WPA and $7,500,000 from the office of education of the Federal Security Agency. The remaining enrollees will be chosen from state employment services co-operating with the United States Employment Service.)

Injunction Suit Seeks Closing Of Loan Firm

Solicitor General's Office Claims Agency Charges Excessive Interest.

A new attack on money lenders who allegedly charge usurious interest rates was begun in Fulton superior court yesterday in the form of an injunction petition seeking to put a lending concern out of business on the basis of its being a public nuisance.

Brought in the name of Solicitor General John A. Boykin, the suit seeks to enjoin permanently the Ward Investment Company and the Ball Investment Company, described by lawyers as one concern, from doing business.

Hearing of the case began before Judge Paul S. Etheridge Sr. and is expected to last for several days. Testimony is being introduced by affidavits.

The action against the Ward or Ball Investment Company was instituted by the solicitor general at the request of the Atlanta Federation of Trades. City Attorney Jack C. Savage is acting counsel for the solicitor's office, aided by James A. Branch and Henry Bowden. The defense is conducted by the firm of Hewlett & Dennis and Noah Stone.

Bowden said he and his colleagues had affidavits that the investment agencies had charged as high as 240 per cent interest.

Envoy Earle's Son To Enlist In R. A. F.

SOFIA, July 1.—(UP)—George H. Earle Jr., 24-year-old son of the new United States minister to Bulgaria, has resigned as his father's secretary to join the British Royal Air Force in Egypt.

Young Earle, an experienced pilot with 300 hours in the air, will leave Friday to take up his R. A. F. post. Young Earle attended Harvard for two years and served for a year as his father's secretary when the latter was Governor of Pennsylvania.

In Haverford, Pa., Mrs. Earle said tonight she "might" take steps to prevent her son from joining the British Royal Air Force.

"Started" by the news, she said: "We mothers can never get over the heartache of our boys going to war."

Interstate Shipment Ban On Fight Films Lifted
WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—President Roosevelt signed today a bill lifting a 28-year-old prohibition against the interstate shipment of prize fight films.
The law which banned such shipments was enacted July 31, 1912, after films showing the fight between the Negro boxer, Jack Johnson, and Jim Jefferies, had led to racial feeling.

BACKACHE, LEG PAINS MAY BE DANGER SIGN Of Tired Kidneys

If backache and leg pains are making you miserable, don't just complain and do nothing about them. Nature may be warning you that your kidneys need attention. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisons out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.
If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 46 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Neely's Letter On City Traffic Bonds Quoted

Planning Board Member Says 'Road Arteries' Boost Taxable Values.

The following is the text of a letter to city council from Frank H. Neely, member of the Fulton County Planning Board, in which Mr. Neely requested that council include in its bond election proposal bonds for the improvement of traffic conditions in and around Atlanta.

The text of Mr. Neely's letter follows:

"Gentlemen:
"I notice in the newspapers the effort to institute a bond election for the needed improvements in Atlanta.
"I take the liberty of suggesting to your honorable body the very great necessity of incorporating in any such activity bonds sufficient to clear up many conditions in and around Atlanta that relate to the proper service of Atlanta with adequate traffic facilities.

There are many things that should be done north, east, south and west in connection with these activities that will require the purchase of right-of-ways and the opening up of main arteries which would all dovetail with the very exhaustive study that is now being made by the federal bureau of roads in conjunction with the state highway department for this entire country.

"This is one project which, when completed, increases taxable values and does not cause continuous additional expense on the city such as schools, hospitals and things of this kind, and, therefore, since it is building the wealth of the city, particularly the downtown section, where most of the taxes originate, it is very important to our mind and many other citizens and merchants that this item be given very careful thought and consideration in this activity.

"I urge you, therefore, to have the committee responsible for such investigation give thoughtful consideration to this great need of our fair city. In passing, I point to the fact that Houston, Tex., has increased its population 100,000 in the last 10 years, and that 10 years ago it received nation-wide publicity for its foresight in planning traffic arteries. While there are natural advantages to cause this excessive increase in population, this foresight might be considered as one of the factors that enabled the city to grow successfully, and is one that we should not overlook for Atlanta.

"As one of the people responsible for the effort to get the last bond election passed, I have in my possession a great deal of information on this subject, which I will be glad to pass on to the proper parties.
"Respectfully,
"FRANK H. NEELY."

City Pay Raises Of $64,000 Are Suggested

Finance Group To Study New Salary Schedule Under Classification.

A $64,000 immediate annual increase in salaries of about 3,100 city employees with a prospect that the figure will level off within about five years and stand below the $3,500,000 now paid was recommended yesterday to city council as consultants of the public administration service put a price tag of jobs under the city's new classification report.

The salary schedules were referred to the finance committee for public hearings and a report to council July 15.
W. F. Finan, who heads the local staff of consultants, said the "immediate increase does not represent an annual outlay of $64,000 but that under the schedules submitted the cost will be gradually reduced until in a short period of time, salary accounts will level off at about the present $3,500,000 now paid the workers."

Finan said the city is now paying individual employees a total of $39,000 in excess of maximums recommended in the new salary schedules. No net in present salaries was recommended.

Definite figures regarding the number of persons involved in the raises contemplated, or the number drawing salaries in excess of maximums established by the survey were not available yesterday.

House Passes Measure To 'Expose' Alien Units

WASHINGTON, July 1.—(P)—A bill to throw the full glare of publicity on the inner workings of organizations seeking to overthrow the government by force, and of foreign-controlled groups which engage in politics or civilian military activity, was passed today by the house.

Such organizations would have to register with the attorney general and file detailed reports of their activities.

State Paints Road Lines, Asks Aid of Motorists

M. C. Bishop, director of the division of traffic and safety of the State Highway Department, yesterday called upon motorists to co-operate in the center-lining program now going on in various sections of the state by not running across the paint immediately after it is put down. He pointed out that driving across the wet line not only ruins the line but spreads paint over the rest of the road.

Democracy Faces Test--Townsend

ST. LOUIS, July 1.—(P)—Dr. Francis E. Townsend, painting a bleak picture of the sweep of totalitarian power in Europe and Asia, told a convention of his followers today that his pension plan was "the key to America's salvation."

Asserting that "democracy faces a challenge," he said, "it is up to the people of America to prove that the ideals by which we have lived and grown great can triumph over the world-crushing forces of domination and enslavement."

With "these thoughts in mind," Townsend said he attended the Republican convention in Philadelphia and found "little realization or desire to face the realities—the problems of labor, the unemployment and the aged."

He added that he expected "no higher degree of statesmanship or knowledge of our national peril" from the coming Democratic convention.

Rumania Faces New Invasion From Hungary

Army Continues Retreat Before Russians; Refugees Jam Capital.

BUCHAREST, July 1.—(AP)—Rumania moved tonight to meet a possible Hungarian invasion of Transylvania while her army retreated before the spike-capped Russian troops pouring into ceded Bessarabia and northern Bucovina. Meanwhile the desperate nation cut its last tie with Great Britain and France by renouncing their guarantees of her territorial integrity given April 13, 1939, thus moving further under Germany's political wing.

Henceforth Rumania will follow the new orientation of Europe, a cabinet communique declared.

(Several days ago Rumania took political and economic steps in line with Nazi policy generally.)

The latest Rumanian step should increase the possibility that Germany may give guarantees against further Russian encroachment, Rumanian officials said.

Practically general mobilization in Hungary coincided with a series of frontier "incidents" between Rumanian and Magyar troops.

A protest filed by the Hungarian government with the foreign office here, warning of a "possible unpleasant consequences," added to the gravity.

The Hungarian protest asserted the Rumanians had penetrated into Hungary at Visk.

Rumania's defenses in Transylvania have been at top strength, but some pessimism was heard in military quarters that the debacle in Bessarabia and Bucovina had disorganized King Carol's army.

Bucharest was under ominous tension tonight. Guards were redoubled around public buildings and the royal palace.

Further clashes were reported between Rumanian and Russian troops, as the Soviet army increased the tempo of its occupation of the ceded provinces in the north. At Herta, a Soviet tank opened fire on a Rumanian detachment, killing the commander, one lieutenant, two non-commissioned officers and four soldiers, it was reported.

While the Russians moved ahead with occupation of Bessarabia and northern Bucovina—setting up military governments in strategic centers and turning over to hastily-organized Soviets the management in other places, baby tanks dropped from Soviet planes lined up along the lower Danube, and their guns dominated this important water link between Germany and the east.

The capital and railroad stations were full of travel-stained refugees tonight. Trainheaps were piled high with bundles of household goods wrapped in blankets, baby cribs, and even supplies of corn and other foodstuffs that the peasants had managed to salvage in the scramble before the advancing Red army.

Many families were separated. Depots were established for lost children—some of whom were just learning to walk.

Most of the new class of reservists called up today was sent to the Prut river—scene of heavy clashes yesterday—to establish what military men call a "wall of men" against further Russian advances.

All factories, business establishments, banks and large estates in Bessarabia and Bucovina were being taken over by the Russian military as fast as men could be assigned to take charge.

Soldiers quartered themselves in the largest homes and hotels, and even in royal residences.

British Land First Shipload Of Nazi Prisoners in Canada

QUEBEC, July 1.—(AP)—A motley shipload of Britain's prisoners of war, the first sent to the western hemisphere lest they be set free to fight by invading parachute troops or Fifth Columnists in England, have landed in Canada for internment.

They landed over the weekend after a heavily guarded voyage on which one prisoner dived through a porthole and was lost at sea.

One ship's officer said the captive German army men gave little trouble, but the Nazi airmen "called us swine nearly every chance they got on the way over." The number of prisoners was not disclosed.

Some prisoners were smiling and others were glowering as they stepped ashore.

"We slept about two nights in seven," a British officer said of the 250 British officers and soldiers who guarded the prisoners.

Some of the prisoners, who included Nazi land, sea and air forces, were kept on board their prison ship for debarkation at Montreal.

They marched through long lines of Canadian bayonets, hailing one another jocularly. A German in brown fatigue jacket, identified by an English lieutenant as a submarine commander, was the first prisoner ashore. Speaking fluent English, he superintended checking the baggage of his fellow prisoners.

The prisoners included army officers and men in green uniforms, blue-clad aviators, U-boat and tank crews and even parachute troops in black leather trousers and jackets.

One of the prisoners complained:

"You English have no system whatever. We should have been off this ship hours ago."

British officers said the prisoners had been captured in France, the Low Countries and in Norway, and added that some had expressed themselves as "quite pleased" to leave embattled Europe.

Nazi Bombers U.S. Ship Takes Raid England Refugees From Three Times Crown Colony

LONDON, July 1.—(P)—German air raiders roared high over the new coastal barbed wire barricades of England and heavily bombed this tight little isle tonight for the second time in less than 24 hours.

Eleven persons were killed and a score injured in one northeast Scottish community. All but three of the casualties were women and children, the announcement added.

Two raiders were shot down in an air battle, which followed extensive British bombings in Germany and the destruction of a dozen Nazi planes over France.

Three explosions were heard in another air raid over northeast England tonight, but no planes were seen or heard by residents, indicating they flew at great height.

A plane believed to have been German was heard over Wales, but first reports said no bombs were dropped.

Part of Fleet Saved.

The spectacular aerial counter-punches came as Britain learned that at least part—an unknown part—of the French fleet has been saved for her by a doughty Gallic admiral, and posted a "keep out" sign for all the world on French-mandated territory in the near east.

Vice Admiral Muselier, World War hero in the defense of Ypres and later a collaborator of France's great Premier Georges Clemenceau in the old Tiger's efforts to extirpate forever the German menace to France, was named to command "all free French naval forces." General Charles de Gaulle, head of the French national committee to continue the war, made the announcement here.

De Gaulle said there were "already several ships and air groups under his command," but their number and location were not disclosed.

Destroyed Secrets.

Muselier raced to Paris from Bordeaux when he heard of the impending armistice with Germany. Arriving at almost the same time German troops occupied Paris, he managed to destroy several secret plans and one of the national defense factories.

While the British told all comers that occupation of the French mandates Syria and Lebanon would not be allowed, sweating British Tommies completed a ring of barbed wire entanglements around the British shore. There is a sentry on every beach and every pier head, alert for the Nazi invasion which England is sure will come.

Defenses of Nicaragua Ready, Says War Head

NEW ORLEANS, July 1.—(P)—General Rigaberto Reyes, minister of war of Nicaragua, said here today that "We are ready to defend our country and the Monroe Doctrine."

"European war," he added, "has increased the solidarity of the Americas and we are standing ready with our friends, the United States." The general, who went to Washington in May for hospital treatment, came here from New York with his daughter, Senora Luz Marina Lang.

Hungary Held Ready To Seize Transylvania

Rumania Warned of 'Unpleasant Consequences' Over Clashes.

BUDAPEST, July 1.—(AP)—Hungary was on a war footing tonight and the dispatch of troops into Transylvania—which Hungary lost to Rumania in 1918—was expected momentarily.

Excitement was whipped to fever pitch when the government, protesting to Bucharest against "incidents" on the Hungarian-Rumanian frontier, warned Rumania of "unpleasant consequences" and called up more troops. Three civilians were killed in one incident.

Officialdom re-emphasized the "mission" of 1,000-year-old Hungary as an outpost against the east, and let it be known that Rumania—which has just surrendered part of its territory to the Red army—appeared to be "on the threshold of collapse."

Responsible quarters said Germany and Italy still were striving to maintain peace in southeastern Europe, but the feeling was widespread that military action was imminent.

Official reports alleged Rumanian troops had penetrated Hungarian territory at Visk, but were driven back after an exchange of shots. Immediate quickening of military preparations followed.

Reservists flocked to mobilization centers. A full army corps was advancing toward the Rumanian border, officials confirmed.

In its reports from Transylvania (half Hungarian in population, according to Budapest) the semi-official Hungarian news agency spoke of urgently needed protection for Magyars. Thousands of Hungarian-born Rumanian soldiers in Transylvania are refusing to fight for Rumania, the dispatches added, and the number of deserters was growing hourly.

Afraid of Russia.

It was no secret here that the Russian army's overstepping of the line of demarcation fixed in the Moscow ultimatum to Rumania is causing considerable worry for Hungarian officials as well as their German and Italian friends.

In official circles it has long been emphasized that Hungary would be forced to seize the Carpathian mountain barrier in Transylvania for "self protection" should the Red army advance toward the Danube basin. Support of the Rome-Berlin Axis was claimed in this plan.

Transylvania, rich agricultural province, was part of Austria-Hungary before the World War.

Alabamians To Train Men for War Jobs

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 1.—(P)—A statewide training program to fit skilled Alabamians into specialized jobs in war industries was announced today by Dr. A. H. Collins, state superintendent of education.

The program, being financed nationwide by a $15,000,000 federal appropriation, will draw already skilled men from industries allocated orders for military equipment and train them for specific types of work needed to produce the war materials.

Each man selected will get two months of rigid training, but Collins said only enough would be picked to fill the necessary jobs.

Reds Reported Withdrawing To Ceded Area

JASSY, Rumania, July 1.—(P)—Red army withdrawal from positions over the Prut river into old Rumania was reported tonight in this heavily armed, refugee-jammed provincial capital at the edge of Soviet-occupied Bessarabia.

Soviet sources had said the overstepping of the limits of ceded Bessarabia and northern Bucovina was only a misunderstanding, but it stirred fears in the Balkans that the Red tide might sweep on through southeastern Europe.

The army of occupation still commands bridges across the Prut, but many of these are mined on the Rumanian side. Rumanian troops stand ready to enforce their claim to the southwest bank.

Every second man in Jassy is in uniform, carrying a gun. Everywhere are refugees. Forty bearded Orthodox priests reached here today, escorted by a Rumanian cavalry regiment.

Exhausted, laden with ikons and valued religious vessels they saved from their churches on the Bessarabian-Soviet frontier, the priests traveled three days across rain-splashed quagmire country to safety.

Still seated on borrowed cavalry horses, they offered blessings and prayers of thanksgiving.

Cavalry officers said Russian tank columns in one town surrounded them and the priests and demanded that they lay down their arms.

Instead, the regiment unlimbered its machine guns and, as the officers put it, "persuaded" the Russians to let them pass.

Nazis Capture World-Famed Channel Isles

Guernsey, Jersey Taken by German Troops Landed From Planes.

BERLIN, July 1.—(AP)—Germany claimed her first foothold on British soil tonight, occupying the channel islands of Guernsey and Jersey in a surprise stroke by the air force.

The two pastoral islands in the English channel, famed for their fine breeds of cattle, lie like stepping stones between the French coast—now also in German hands—and Britain. The islands are closer to France than Britain.

The high command gave little more than the bare announcement that they had been occupied, Guernsey on Sunday and Jersey today.

But its credit of a "coup de main" (surprise action) of the German air force hinted that troops had been landed on both islands by airplanes.

(London admitted "enemy landings have been made" on the islands and added that all communications to them were suspended. Western Union said this included also the islands of Alderney and Sark.)

(Presumably, the channel islands were deemed undefendable by the British command. They previously had been declared demilitarized and most of their herds were shipped to England.)

An earlier communique reported a British cruiser of the Orion class torpedoed south of the French port of Brest and credited one submarine with sinking 23,000 tons of enemy merchant shipping.

Graziani, Salty Desert Veteran, Succeeds Balbo

ROME, July 1.—(P)—Marshal Rodolfo Graziani, tough veteran of Italy's colonial wars, returned tonight to Libya, scene of his earlier triumphs, to succeed the late Marshal Italo Balbo as commander of North African forces.

His mission was to save from British invasion the territory which, between 1921 and 1929, he reclaimed from native Rebels.

While Marshal Balbo's body began its long journey back to Italy, the circumstances of his death remained obscure. Italian correspondents reported that he rushed into an air battle which he found raging over Tobruk and British machinegun fire shot down his plane, killing him and eight others.

In London, however, the British foreign office recalled coolness of Premier Mussolini toward the marshal; declared "no British aircraft" were involved in the fatal crash.

Graziani earned a reputation for vigorous methods and tactical skill. At the start of the Ethiopian War he was placed in command of Italian armies in Somaliland. In this arid, inhospitable expanse, where temperatures rose to 150 degrees at midday and troops had scorpions for bedfellows, Graziani's mixed Italian and native army saw some of the bloodiest fighting of the war. He came back to Italy with his body riddled with fragments of a bomb thrown at him in Addis Ababa by a native Rebel.

Russian Demands On Turks Forecast

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 1.—(UP)—Informed Turkish sources predicted tonight that Russia soon would submit proposals to Turkey concerning control of the Aegean and Black seas and the strategic straits connecting them.

The government was represented as being confident that it could reach an understanding with Moscow on the question of what fleets would be allowed future use of the Bosphorus and the Dardanelles.

British Land First Shipload Of Nazi Prisoners in Canada

Quebec, July 1.—(AP)—A motley shipload of Britain's prisoners of war, the first sent to the western hemisphere lest they be set free to fight by invading parachute troops or Fifth Columnists in England, have landed in Canada for internment.

They landed over the weekend after a heavily guarded voyage on which one prisoner dived through a porthole and was lost at sea.

One ship's officer said the captive German army men gave little trouble, but the Nazi airmen "called us swine nearly every chance they got on the way over." The number of prisoners was not disclosed.

Some prisoners were smiling and others were glowering as they stepped ashore.

"We slept about two nights in seven," a British officer said of the 250 British officers and soldiers who guarded the prisoners.

Some of the prisoners, who included Nazi land, sea and air forces, were kept on board their prison ship for debarkation at Montreal.

They marched through long lines of Canadian bayonets, hailing one another jocularly. A German in brown fatigue jacket, identified by an English lieutenant as a submarine commander, was the first prisoner ashore. Speaking fluent English, he superintended checking the baggage of his fellow prisoners.

The prisoners included army officers and men in green uniforms, blue-clad aviators, U-boat and tank crews and even parachute troops in black leather trousers and jackets.

One of the prisoners complained:

"You English have no system whatever. We should have been off this ship hours ago."

British officers said the prisoners had been captured in France, the Low Countries and in Norway, and added that some had expressed themselves as "quite pleased" to leave embattled Europe.

Miss Bahnsen, Mr. Hitchcock Are Married

Friends throughout the state will be interested in announcement made today by Dr. Peter F. Bahnsen, of Americus, of the recent marriage of his daughter, Miss Edith Bahnsen, to Charles Overton Hitchcock, of Atlanta and Rome, Ga. The marriage was solemnized by Rev. C. M. Rogers, Atlanta, in the presence of close friends and relatives of the couple.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. Peter F. Bahnsen and the late Mrs. Beatrice Parrott Bahnsen, of Americus. Dr. Bahnsen was prominently identified with state affairs, serving as state veterinarian for many years. Mrs. Hitchcock's sisters are Mrs. E. C. Veal, Mrs. William H. Taylor, Sara Bahnsen and Georgia Zelma Bahnsen, Americus. John C. Bahnsen, of Monticello, is her brother.

She received her education at the Americus schools and later attended Brenau College in Gainesville. She has been active for the past several years in the business and social circles of Atlanta.

The groom is the son of the late R. B. Hitchcock, of that city, and Mrs. M. J. Edwards, Taylorsville. His sisters are Mesdames Jere Dodd, C. F. Dodd and S. S. Rogers, Rome, and J. E. Davis, Griffin. His brother is J. Hugh Hitchcock, of Atlanta.

After being graduated from the Rome High school he attended the University of Georgia, where he was a member of the Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity.

At present he is connected with the general office of the State Highway Department, Atlanta, where he and his bride will reside at 685 Penn avenue, N. E.

Attractive Visitors To Enliven Social Life For Stay-at-Homes

By SALLY FORTH.

• • • THOUGH THIS WEEK finds society practically taking to wings, so to speak, to find a suitable place to spend the Independence Day holiday, the stay-at-homes need not lose heart. For a bevy of popular and attractive visitors will enliven things at home and social gatherings will be far from dull, even with so many of the younger set leaving for the beach or the mountains.

A charming visitor here over the weekend was lovely Frances Cater, sister of Mrs. English Robinson, the former Ermine Cater, who received the most flattering attention from the stay line wherever she went. However, she will not remain over the Fourth, for she and Ermine plan to leave tomorrow to spend the holidays as guests of their mother in Augusta. Frances is as blondly beautiful as Ermine is brunet and beautiful. On Sunday she wore a striking turquoise blue swim suit at the Driving Club pool, and looked for all the world like a glamour girl of the movies with her pale gold hair and deep sun tan.

Another lovely blonde who causes a stampede in the stay line is Martha Matthews, of Charlotte, who is visiting Mrs. W. C. Cram on Pace's Ferry road. Martha also has a lovely tan and looks grand in her bathing togs. Her visit is the inspiration for numerous informal parties, as you can well imagine.

A trio of popular visitors at the J. C. Malone home on Fairview road includes Julia Groves, of Savannah; Anne Barrett, of Houston, Texas, and Jeannette Mandie, of Paris, Tenn. All three were schoolmates of Dorothy Marshall, who is visiting Mrs. Cram on Pace's Ferry road. Martha also has a lovely tan and looks grand in her bathing togs. Her visit is the inspiration for numerous informal parties, as you can well imagine.

After attending the wedding of her son, Gordon Beh, to lovely Jane McGhee, of Rome, Mrs. Walter Beh, of Greenlawn, L. I., has arrived in the city for a brief visit at the Georgian Terrace. Mrs. Beh has lots of friends in Atlanta, though she has never visited here before. She spends each winter at Miami, and there she met many Atlantans who seek a warmer climate for the cold months.

The forthcoming weekend marks the arrival of Susan Myrick, of Macon, who will visit Margaret Mitchell Marsh at her Piedmont road residence. Susan is the southerner who taught Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh the cultured manner of speaking their parts in the filming of the famous "Gone With the Wind" story, authored by Margaret.

• • • SALLY FORTH takes pleasure in revealing today the election of attractive Ruth Layfield as the new national president of Tau Phi sorority. Ruth, you know, left last week to represent her local chapter at the annual Tau Phi convention held in Washington, D. C. Her election to the presidency was a triumph over scores of other delegates hailing from all over the United States!

The sorority, you know, is comprised of a popular group of young business girls, and the organization's monthly script dances atop the Capital City Club roof are among the most delightful affairs of the summer season.

Sally predicts that Ruth's return to the city tomorrow will be heralded by countless congratulatory telephone calls and messages from her many friends.

• • • REMEMBER the Service Star pins, the link bracelets, made of small Allied flags, which were so widely used in the first World War? Today prominent Atlantans are wearing a new and even more attractive type of war costume jewelry, clipped to white summer bags and belts, in the lapels of suits—or even in their ears.

These clips, earrings and lapel pins are in the shape of red, white and blue rosettes, the colors of lovely conquered France, and the big clips bear white

Luncheon Given By Miss Sharp

Among interesting social affairs for the young subclub contingent was the luncheon and theater party at which Miss Letitia Sharp was hostess yesterday at the Piedmont Driving Club.

The affair was held on the screened porch of the club and Miss Sharp was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. Jack Sharp, and her aunt, Miss Jane Sharp.

The luncheon table was decorated with American flags and colorful baskets filled with nuts further carried out the Fourth of July motif.

Invited for the occasion were Misses Kate Schweppe, of Houston, Texas; Dorothy Laird, Betty Jane Warner, Stella Wellborn, Anne Boone, Callie Huger, Nona Chiles, Catherine Poole, Louise McNeel, of Marietta; Betty and Jo Anne Merritt and Jane Martin.

Cub Scouts Hold Picnic.

The Cub Scouts, Pack 8, of East Lake, held a picnic recently at Glenwood in connection with their meeting. The children enjoyed many games and presented a program under the direction of Cubmaster R. E. Dunn. Following the business meeting, Mrs. R. C. Parris awarded a banner for the best attendance.

Parties Planned For Miss West

Miss Catherine West, whose marriage to Murray Hubbard will be a social event of July 16, continues to be feted at pre-nuptial social affairs. On Wednesday the lovely bride-elect will be central figure at the luncheon at which Mrs. Russell Timmons will be hostess at her home on Wieuca road.

On July 13 Mrs. Sam Henry Rumph will compliment Miss West at a luncheon at her home on Harvard road. Mrs. Harry Poole Sr. will fete the bride-to-be, the date and nature of the affair to be announced later.

Phi Mu Delegate.

Miss Millie Wagon left last week for Glacier National Park, where she will represent the Gamma Delta chapter of Phi Mu at its national convention. The Gamma Delta chapter is located at American University in Washington, D. C., where Miss Wagon is president of Phi Mu, president of the Panhellenic council, head cheer leader and a member of the college council.

After the convention she will visit Yellowstone National Park, returning to Atlanta July 12.

Miss Wagon graduated from Washington Seminary here, and is the daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Bertram H. Wagon.

Miss Rampey, Mr. Rimmer To Wed July 20 at Quiet Rites

Interest centers in the announcement made today of the wedding plans of Miss Mildred Nell Rampey, of Elberton and this city, to Joseph Walter Rimmer Jr., of Pawtucket, R. I., and this city, which will be solemnized on July 20 in the study of the First Baptist church. The ceremony will be quietly solemnized at 5 o'clock by Dr. Ellis Fuller in the presence of members of the families and a few close friends of the couple.

Miss Myrtle Landers will be the bride-elect's maid of honor, and Charles Wood has been selected by the groom-elect to serve as his best man.

Many interesting parties have been planned for the popular couple, among which will be the shower on July 13 at which Miss Myrtle Landers and Mrs. Haskell Garner will be hostesses at the home of the latter on Cumberland road.

Miss Rose Griffin and Charles Wood have selected July 19 as the date for the buffet supper following the wedding rehearsal at which they will honor the couple. The affair will be held at the home of Miss Griffin on Latham avenue.

Mrs. Florence S. Hall has planned a tea for the popular bride-elect, the date of this party and additional parties to be announced later.

Among out-of-town guests who will attend the wedding will be Lawton Rampey, father of the bride-elect, and Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Rampey, brother and sister of the bride-elect, of Elberton; Mrs. F. S. Rampey, of Buford, and Mrs. C. P. Rampey, of Hartwell.

Miss Butler Honored.

Miss Floyd Butler was honored at a miscellaneous shower, given recently by Mrs. J. E. McGuire and Mrs. T. C. McGuire at 2125 Oakwood road, S. E. The rooms were decorated and refreshments were served in the garden.

Present were Mesdames E. W. Allen, A. B. Andrews, Dwight Akers, Ida McLarence Brown, J. H. Burgess, A. P. Brightwell, A. M. Chestnut, H. L. Cudlipp, P. B. Gardner, R. C. Hardsbury Jr., Cliff Harris, H. C. Holbrook, Kate Lewis, Charles M. Mitchell, Fay E. Newbourn, T. H. Nelson, G. W. Pender, John A. Rhodes, R. H. Smith, Ben Sheridan, P. D. Shumate, Clara Belle Sewell, G. O. White, J. W. Wood, J. R. Wellbourne, Ward Williams; Misses Lillian Beach, Evelyn Haney, Sara Jane Holbrook.

A Peg Tooth Will Solve Problem

By Dr. William Brady.

Even today there is a limit beyond which a woman dare not go in matters of dress and makeup lest she become an object of ridicule. After all, personal appearance and personal manners, pleasing voice and diction are not quite sufficient tests of refinement and culture. Taste is indispensable.

A woman of 50 who has contrived, or perhaps just had the good fortune, to retain more than the average degree of grace and charm (vite is the word for it), mentioned that although she had never devoted much time to brushing her teeth she had always visited her dentist regularly for periodic inspection, treatment and polishing. She couldn't understand why some women went about with teeth darkened and stained for want of proper dental care.

In the same breath this woman, whose good looking teeth contributed considerably to her p. a., remarked that only a year ago she had lost a wisdom tooth and a second molar which the dentist had deemed too far damaged from infected old root fillings, to keep in the jaw. Oh, no, she hadn't felt it necessary to have any artificial dentures installed to fill the vacancies and carry on the functions of the missing teeth. The dentist tried to persuade her to do so but she was sure the loss would never show, for they were only back teeth.

Not long afterward the same charming woman, chatting with some friends at the club, sympathized with one of them who had fractured an upper incisor in an accident, said it was lucky the whole tooth had not been lost, for probably the dentist could install a porcelain facing or something which would be indistinguishable from the normal teeth. She herself had lost two back teeth a year or two ago, but as the spaces did not show she had not bothered to have bridges made. She had heard that some dentists can install peg teeth to fill spaces without disturbing teeth on either side of the space, teeth built on some kind of metal posts or pegs which are literally screwed into the jaw bone.

Yes, indeed, another woman here remarked, a peg tooth solves the problem in some cases where a single tooth is lost. She had a friend whose dentist installed a peg tooth to replace a lower incisor two years ago and it has proved quite satisfactory. The dentist who installed it advised that peg teeth are used more for appearance than for efficiency and that he would not attempt to insert one in place of a back tooth where the chief strain of mastication is borne.

MY DAY: NYA Youths Provide Music

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

HYDE PARK.—And so Mr. Wendell Willkie is nominated for President on the Republican ticket, and has as his running mate Senator McNary. I have always liked the senator. He is an attractive person. Therefore, from all accounts, we have two people with charm running for office in this presidential election. I do not know Mr. Willkie, but the headline in one of the metropolitan papers yesterday said: "Willkie Aims at Unity, Defense and Recovery." I'm discouraged. In heaven's name, will anyone aim at anything else?

Sometimes I wonder if we shall ever grow up in our politics and say definite things which mean something, or whether we shall always go on using generalities to which everyone can subscribe, and which mean very little. What is important, is how we expect to achieve the above objectives? That is the only thing that matters to the people of the country and, apparently, we are going to be very vague about these methods.

We can, however, judge parties and people by their records, and Mr. Willkie's record is something all of us should study in the next few weeks.

It is sad to find Rumania and Russia now fighting each other. I see, according to the paper, that King Carol is reported to have called upon Mr. Hitler to protect him, but it seems to me that we read not so long ago about a pact between Germany and Russia. That would seem to preclude any action which would be of real help to Rumania. What a strange world that anyone, even in dire trouble, should seize on such a straw and hope for assistance!

We had a very pleasant party here on Friday night in honor of a combination of birthdays. A program of singing, music and dancing was provided for us by some young people who have been studying on an NYA program in New York city.

Three of them have jobs in summer hotels to provide entertainment this summer, one of them is playing with the NYA Symphony orchestra in New York city. They came up here on their own time and they gave us such a pleasant evening that I only hope they enjoyed themselves also.

Yesterday our son, Jimmy, was here for a few hours and we sat in the sun and chatted before he had to leave to go to work. My niece and nephew, who were staying here, have gone back to Maine, and the house seems very quiet robbed of so much young life.

Mrs. George Huntington, who is staying with me, Miss Thompson and I motored down to Fishkill Saturday evening to dine with Mrs. Henry Morgenthau Jr.

The weather has continued to be as uncertain as possible, and we never know from minute to minute whether a thunderstorm is around the corner.

I have had very little exercise, for I find myself constantly catching up on work when I have a free day here. This week, however, I hope to take fewer trips to the city.

THE WOMAN'S QUIZ

Q. Please give a recipe for cottage cheese pudding.

A. Beat 2 eggs slightly and combine with 2 cups of cottage cheese, 2-3 cup of milk, 1-2 cup of sugar, 1 tablespoon lemon juice and 1-2 teaspoon grated lemon rind. Stir until well-blended, pour the mixture into a medium-sized casserole and place in a pan of hot water. Bake the pudding in a slow oven (300 degrees F.) for about 70 minutes. Serve cold.

Q. How long do goldfish live in confinement?

A. That depends largely on the care they receive. Pet dealers have kept them 20 years, and know of others who have kept them equally long. One woman kept a goldfish over 16 years in an ordinary fish globe. Five years probably is a good average lifetime for goldfish in confinement.

Q. Name the most popular frozen fruits and vegetables.

A. Strawberries are the most popular fruit, and green peas the most popular vegetable. Blueberries are second choice and cherries third among the fruits, with peaches rapidly gaining popularity. Of the vegetables, lima beans stand second with broccoli, spinach and asparagus running close.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, enclose a three-cent postage stamp and mail to the Woman's Editor of The Constitution, Washington Service Bureau, 1013 13th Street, Washington, D. C., for a reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Becoming Sleeves

By Barbara Bell.

Everything about this dainty frock is designed for coolness and summer charm—the easy, slim waistline, belt only in the back, the neckline, drawn away at the sides, and above all the fluttering sleeves, open at the shoulder. Sleeves like this are as cool as no sleeves at all, and of course vastly more becoming! A few buttons and a little braid point up the charm of this frock, that you can so easily and inexpensively make at home with design No. 1998-B.

It will be sweet and cool in flowered batiste or voile, in pure dye silk print or dimity. Choose flower-like colors—mint green, forget-me-not blue, jonquil yellow or lilac. You'll want more than one version!

Barbara Bell pattern No. 1998-B is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Corresponding bust measurements 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38. Size 14 (32) requires 4-5 yards of 35-inch material without nap; 7-8 yards with nap.

It's ready! Barbara Bell's new fashion book, with almost 100 sparkling new designs for afternoon, daytime and sports! Lovely things for you and the children, all smarter than smart, exclusively designed for you! Send for it today! Spend less, and still have all the clothes you want.

Diet Reduces And Exercise Beautifies

By Ida Jean Kain

It seems to this casual observer that some of the women who play golf regularly have very bad figures. Of course, that's not true of all golfers—there are exceptions with as neat and tidy figures as could be found to decorate a green!

But what's the matter with the others? The average golfer is inclined to think her game entitles her to considerably more food and to overcompensate on calories. This is true not only of golf but of more sports or exercise. Physical activity is simply no match for overeating.

And any of you who are trying to reduce by exercise alone have a long, hard pull ahead of you. To lose one single pound of stored adipose tissue, you have to burn up exactly 4,320 calories in energy. You think that is easy? Well, just let me give you a rough idea of how much exercise it takes! As nearly as can be figured, you would have to keep going around the 18-hole course about five times. Or, you could lose your pound by playing pingpong about 17 hours; by sawing wood for 10 1-2 hours; or by rowing hard, as if you were racing, for five hours!

None of that is intended to discourage you from exercising, but it is a strong argument against overeating with the hope that exercise will even things up. It never will!

The value of exercise is in its tonic effect. What exercise lacks in dealing with the calories it more than makes up for in its beautifying qualities. If I could only get across the idea that exercise is beautifying but not reducing, and that diet is reducing but not beautifying—we'd get somewhere!

There is still another reason why golf does not help you to cut a fine figure in your evening frock. It's good exercise, but it's not streamlining. You get a nice walk—and there's nothing better for you—and it's fine exercise for the muscles of the legs, arms, shoulders, and even the waistline, which benefits from the swinging. But it misses the most important muscles of all, those four pairs of abdominal muscles. It's only by keeping these midsection muscles in good tone that you can have a really lovely figure. When you get out and play golf so often, it may seem useless to take a few specific calisthenics. But if you are determined to have a figure your husband can be proud of, you will do it. Perhaps it will help to drive the point home to know that even some of the professionals go to a gym and take these specific exercises to keep up to par in their game!

Wise Wife Hides Her Jealousy

Keep Supply Collar Buttons On Hand

By Yolande Gwin.

If you want peace in the Home—If you want Your Beloved to keep his spirits up and his temper down, then start shopping for accessories.

The men love the proper kind and plenty of them, and it is a wise wife who knows when and what to buy.

For instance, why will a man spend several hundred dollars for a bird dog and will not invest in more than two collar buttons? Collar buttons don't cost much, but sometimes if you are not thoughtful, one of these little trinkets will cost you your peace of mind, to say nothing of ruining what you had hoped would be a simply grand evening.

There is not a man living who has not cursed his little pal, the collar button, when said button decides to roll off the bureau and into the darkest corner in the room. And the corner is usually behind the dressing table or behind the bed.

What does a man do? He gets down on his hands and knees in positions which a circus performer would envy, and looks for his precious little button. He will work himself up into such a dither over the loss, that he will be unbearable for the rest of the night, and will actually blame you for having the room too dark, and for having the furniture in the wrong place.

And never let the children see their father in one of his insane poses in his search. And don't let them say, "Daddy, let's play button, button, who's got the button?" That will infuriate him.

If you are smart you can have an extra supply hidden in your bureau. When you think he is getting ready to move the furniture out and roll back the rug, just pretend you have found the bad old button, and give it to him. Be sure it is identical to the lost one.

The next morning when the lost one is found, just put it away with your supply. Remember, he will be needing it again and so will you!

POINTS FOR PARENTS

By Edyth Thomas Wallace.

Mother: "Now we will put on your sock . . . now we will put on your shoe . . . now we will put on your dress, etc."

Mother: "Tomorrow we will go to grandma's and she will take you for a ride and maybe you will see a doggie."

When talking to a baby in order to increase his vocabulary, remember he is much more interested in the present than in the future.

Chicken, Ham, Hot Biscuits Good Main Dish Shortcake

By Sally Saver.

A yummy luncheon dish is ham and chicken shortcakes. They could be made with rounds of bread, but since everyone enjoys flaky hot biscuits, and they are especially delicious as the foundation of this dish, biscuits are suggested. Make them as follows.

Ham and Chicken Shortcakes.

2 cups self-rising flour
3-4 cup milk
2 teaspoons butter or margarine
8 slices baked ham
8 slices chicken or 1 1-2 cups minced chicken, cooked
1 can cream of mushroom soup, undiluted
1-2 cup milk

Make biscuit dough with flour and three-fourths cup milk, roll about one-quarter inch thick and cut 16 2-inch rounds. Arrange eight rounds in a shallow baking pan or dish, spread with butter, cover with another round and bake in hot oven, 425 degrees, for 10 to 12 minutes.

Lift off top round, place a slice of ham and one of chicken on each biscuit and replace cover. Over all pour the mushroom soup, which has been well heated, and serve at once, garnished with parsley.

Here is a luncheon or supper menu using the shortcakes as the main dish:

Jellied Consomme
Ham and Chicken Shortcakes
Fresh Fruit Salad

Iced Tea

Iced Coffee

A dessert may be added if desired. A suitable dessert would be pound cake with custard sauce, frozen custard, a charlotte russe or a refrigerator pie or cake. If this menu were used for buffet supper it might include a relish tray holding pickles, celery, carrot strips, radishes and other crunchy, raw edibles.

Questions about foods, recipes, menus or service will be answered by Sally Saver. Write or phone The Constitution or Walnut 6565.

Olivia de Havilland Receives a Book From Sister---On How To Get Your Man

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, July 1.—Joan Fontaine sent sister Olivia de Havilland "The Hussey's Handbook," erstwhile best seller dealing with that always enthralling subject—how to get your man. Watch out, Jimmy Stewart . . . Bette Davis is the only star in Hollywood who personally answers her own telephone. I know because I tried it . . . Carole Lombard has had a slight recurrence of poison oak. Carole is so allergic to the stuff that she catches it within smelling distance . . . Charlie Laughton, now co-starring with Carole in "They Knew What They Wanted," will play the part as is—he will stick to being an Italian. And why not? Why should Italians be condemned for the crimes of those they left behind them?

This should please Maureen O'Sullivan. They want to introduce a new feminine character in the next "Tarzan" flicker. The present plan is for Johnny Weissmuller to have a row with his mate and to find a new female in the jungle. I can almost hear Maureen saying, "Goodbye, goodie." She's been hoping for years for a divorce from her "Tarzan" role.

I've just heard a typical W. C. Fields story. It was while Bill was working in a picture with Edgar Bergen. Fields was telling the director how he would play a certain scene. "But, Mr. Fields," he was reminded, "you're forgetting that Edgar Bergen is also in the scene." "I know, I know," said Bill, and continued with his "how-I-shall-do-it" ideas. After this had gone on for some time, with Fields ignoring the director's repeated reminders on Bergen, Bill finally said, very testily, "Yes, I know Mr. Bergen is in the scene, but I won't see him."

"I'll marry that girl" says Orson Welles. He means he'll marry Dolores Del Rio . . . But he has to catch her first. This is what Dolores says, "It's very embarrassing to read in the papers that we (Orson and I) are engaged, when I haven't got my divorce yet." (Dolores and husband Cedric Gibbons separated a few months ago. A divorce is imminent) . . . And, by the way, here's palpitating news. Mr. Welles actually starts his first picture next week. It's "Citizen Kane," which Orson says is a story of American life. But here's a typical thing. Now that the boy wonder is all ready to start (after a nine months' dilly-dally), he is having budget trouble with R. K. O., who want to cut down on the $1,500,000 promised for his first picture. And so it goes.

"I gained five pounds, but it's worth it. I'm going to meet a very handsome and wealthy man!"

Other Woman Uses Flattery As Weapon

By Caroline Chatfield.

DEAR MISS CHATFIELD: Maybe you will say this is unreasonable jealousy but I don't think so. My husband went with this girl for three years before he married me. He didn't love her or he would have married her instead of me; but she thinks he did. She has formed the habit of dropping by his office every now and then and asking him to give her a ride home, which he does, of course.

I have always heard that a big dose of the other woman was best cure so I have asked this person to our home to dinner several times and every time I've been sorry I did it. Not that I think my husband loves her; but that I can see he is flattered by her interest in him. He hates jealousy in a woman and I have tried my best not to let that see. I was jealous if that's what it is. But I can't go on any longer this way. I am losing weight from worry and I want some good advice as to the next step.

A WORRIED WIFE.

ANSWER:

You should get down to cases with your husband and give him a close-up on your state of mind. Tell him that you aren't going to throw fits and stage scenes but that you are unhappy and want him to do something about it. If he's straight as a string, your frank statement will be enough. He should be made to realize that if the case were reversed and you were seeing a lot of an old beau, he wouldn't be happy about it.

Now I know they say a man gets quickly fed up with a girl that goes after him and consequently it's cagey for a wife to give him his fill in the hope of his floundering (inemule parlance) yet I wonder. In view of the fact that a man falls for feminine flattery more and more easily as the years go by. It seems to me a wife is taking a big chance when she puts the flatterer next to her husband and encourages her to do her worst.

That masculine ego is something to reckon with! It isn't reduced in size or strength by the reminder that an old girl still hangs around waiting and hoping for a handout. The masculine ego says "Let her hang and hope. No harm can come of it and it raises my stock with the better half." Well harm can come of it and it doesn't raise anybody's stock with anybody. The other woman merely makes misery for the wife is a potential danger to the husband and wife and the quicker she's banished the better for all parties concerned.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

A Gay Cotton

By Lillian Mae.

Your work-a-day cotton frock may be both practical and becoming. Lillian Mae proves this point with Pattern 4386—a gay style that's perfect to live in from sun-up to sundown. It's made in just a few pattern parts, with waistline seams omitted and smooth lines given by darning. The yoke "copy cats" the line of the neck—an effect that may be accentuated by ric-rac or ruffled edging. Use more of the trim for the smart optional pockets and on the puffed sleeves which may have pointed tabs. You might choose the cool, flaring sleeve style. For extra color, why not consider making yoke, pockets and sleeve tabs in fresh contrast?

Pattern 4386 is available in women's sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 50. Size 36 takes 3 1-2 yards 35-inch fabric and 2 1-4 yards ric-rac.

Send 15 cents in coins for this Lillian Mae pattern. Do not send stamps. Write plainly size, name, address and style number.

Send your order to Lillian Mae Pattern Department, The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga.

Miss Jane Johnson, whose marriage to Newton M. Wright Jr. will be a social event of July 7, was central figure recently at a miscellaneous shower at which Misses Virginia Zachry and Elizabeth Johnson entertained at the home of Miss Zachry on Springdale road.

The hostesses were assisted in entertaining by their mothers, Mesdames Archie C. Johnson and A. L. Zachry.

Invited were Mesdames W. F. Johnson, mother of the bride-elect, M. R. Frost, N. M. Wright, E. Crockett, R. A. Radson, A. C. Morris, Hugh Roland, Jack Andrews, A. L. Zachry, Arthur C. Johnson, Misses Jane Johnson, Lucile Nolan, Mary Johnson, Martha Bagwell, Sarah Jones, Frankie Fitzgerald, Ethel Fulton, Margaret Richardson, Catherine Holloway, Dorothy Dozier, Virginia Zachry, and Elizabeth Johnson.

For Miss Crabbe.

Miss Virginia Marshall entertained at a steak supper Friday evening, honoring Miss Catherine Crabbe, of Columbus, Ohio.

Invited were Mesdames Margaret Matthews, Martha Tucker, Evelyn Green, Messrs. John McAllister, Charles Carter, Bob Penland, Bart Baldwin and Hinton Grizzard.

Friendship Club.

The Friendship Club met recently with Mrs. E. J. Williams on Sterling street, N. E.

Present were Mesdames D. M. McIntyre, J. E. Buice, A. W. Adams, Mrs. Mooney, E. J. Williams and Roy G. Smith. The next meeting will be with Mrs. E. E. Barnes, 1325 Berwick avenue, N. E., on July 19.

Miss Helen Diggs, on the left, and her sister, Miss Alice Diggs, are the attractive daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Diggs, of Washington, D. C. The lovely belles are being extensively entertained as the guests of their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. George Street, at their home on West Wesley road.

Miss Napier, Monroe Belle, Weds Alfred Jones, of Dalton

MONROE, Ga., July 1.—Miss Frances Nunnally Napier became the bride of Alfred Jones, of Dalton, at a brilliant ceremony taking place here Saturday evening at the home of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. W. H. Nunnally. Rev. Charles Liphart, pastor of the First Methodist church here, performed the marriage at 8:30 o'clock in the presence of a fashionable assemblage of friends and relatives of the couple.

A musical program was presented by Mrs. Arthur Stokes, violinist, and Mrs. Paul Launius, pianist. The improvised altar was gracefully banked with palms and ferns and urns containing Easter lilies and white gladioli. Flanking the arrangement were cathedral candelabra holding burning white tapers.

The ushers were George Nunnally and Harry Nunnally, of this city, cousins of the bride. The groomsmen were Clarke Jones, of Dalton, the groom's brother, Walter Jones Jr., of Dalton, was best man for his brother.

Mrs. Adna North, of Atlanta, was matron of honor for her sister. Another sister of the bride, Mrs. Homer Sutton, of Dalton, was the bridesmaid. The attendants were gowned alike in models of aquamarine blue marquisette and net posed over matching taffeta styled with sweetheart necklines and bouffant skirts. They carried bouquets of pink roses, snapdragons, and delphinium tied with pink satin streamers. They wore clusters of roses in their hair.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Josiah Roy Nunnally. The beautiful blond bride wore a white French marquisette gown posed over taffeta styled with a sweetheart neckline and long sleeves. The only trimming was a band of heirloom rose point lace inserted at the snug-fitting waistline. The veil of illusion tulle which was worn by her sisters at the time of their marriages, was caught to her hair with a band of rose point lace and a cluster of orange blossoms. Her only ornament was a diamond and pearl brooch which had been a wedding gift from the bride's father to her mother. She carried a bouquet of valley lilies, white roses and orchids.

After the ceremony the bride's mother, Mrs. George Moultrie Napier, and her grandmother, Mrs. W. H. Nunnally, entertained at a reception.

Mrs. Napier received her guests wearing a gown of shell-pink lace, and her flowers were a shoulder cluster of lavender orchids. Mrs. Walter Jones, of Dalton, the groom's mother, chose for her son's wedding a gown of light blue lace and chiffon. A cluster of orchids adorned her shoulder. Mrs. Nunnally was gowned in a model of powder blue lace, with which she wore a shoulder spray of pink rosebuds.

Mrs. Henry Herbert, of Florence, S. C., a life-long friend of the bride, kept the bride's book. A group of close friends of the bride, including Misses Sara Roberts, Nell Legwen, Louis Fort, Alice Field, and Mrs. Donald Stephen-

Stewart—Ward.

WINDER, Ga., July 1.—Miss Martha Cecilia Stewart and A. G. Ward Jr., of Cedartown, were married Sunday at the First Methodist church by the Rev. W. H. Clark.

Music was rendered by Mrs. Edwin Strange, pianist, and William Barron, violinist.

The bride's brunet beauty was enhanced by a gown of navy sheer with a white lace collar. Her accessories were of navy and her flowers a shoulder spray of white rosebuds and lilies of the valley.

Mr. and Mrs. Ward left for a wedding trip and upon their return will reside in Cedartown, where the groom is connected with Ward & Strange, Western Auto Associate store. Mrs. Ward is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Stewart, of Winder.

La Rocca Clubs Meet

Officers' club and Service club of Mary E. La Rocca grove, Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, met recently at Adams Park.

A picnic luncheon was served, followed by a business meeting of the Service club. Plans were discussed for a "pauper's" party, the date and place to be announced soon. Carolyn Barksdale received the gift which was disposed of in interest of the club.

Dates Are Set For Community Fund Campaign

Two Weeks From October 21 Through November 2 Designated.

The two-week period from October 21 through November 2 was set aside yesterday for the 18th annual Community Fund appeal, it was announced by General Campaign Chairman Carl Wolf, who said that trustees had approved the dates and voiced a high note of optimism for success of the campaign to finance services of 33 participating agencies.

"Without a single exception those who have been asked to fill key positions this year have responded vigorously and are already gathering the nucleus for a far-reaching army of volunteer workers who will drive on to the goal to be set by the budget committee," Wolf declared.

Serious Home Problem.

"We have every reason for reaching that goal this year. With the rest of the world in the grip of a mighty slaughter and with America spending billions for defensive measures, we have a serious problem facing all local American communities of safeguarding the 'home front'."

"The agencies financed through the Community Fund stress the value of building fine, stalwart citizens. The agencies strive to reduce the need for public relief through rehabilitation of families unable to keep up with the modern problems of living."

"Thus it is quite evident that we must bend every effort to continue the work of our agencies which care for the sick and handicapped, provide shelter for the very young and the aged, and train our boys and girls to become self-reliant and self-supporting citizens with a love of country and appreciation of American freedom."

Requests Reviewed.

Wolf pointed out that a budget committee composed of leading Atlantans is reviewing requests from the 33 agencies, studying the necessity of the requests, with the ultimate aim of arriving at the absolute minimum need of the participating agencies for the year 1941.

"When the committee completes its tedious work, then its recommendations will be taken up by the fund board of trustees, which will in turn fix the goal for the coming appeal," he said.

Nazis Say British

Fliers Killed 13

BERLIN, July 1.—(AP)—British air attacks over the Netherlands last night were particularly heavy, DNB, official German news agency, said tonight.

Nonmilitary objectives bore the brunt, DNB declared in announcing 13 persons were killed and many injured. The dead, DNB said, included a couple and five children.

Rain Is Predicted Here

This Afternoon, Night

Increasing cloudiness this morning will be followed by rain this afternoon and tonight, the United States Weather Bureau predicted last night.

The day, according to the bureau's estimate, will also be somewhat warmer, with 68 forecast for the low and 90 for the top reading. Yesterday's high and low were 85 and 63 degrees.

Hollywood Trip

Herbert Mitchell, High

School Student, Honored for Writing.

Herbert Mitchell, 20-year-old Atlantan, who is a student at Commercial High school, will leave Thursday for Hollywood for a two-week trip as the guest of the motion picture industry, because he has written the best history of American railroads. The announcement was made yesterday by Mrs. Alonzo Richardson, of the Atlanta Board of Motion Picture Censors.

Mitchell also is an art director of the National Youth Administration for Atlanta, and spent nine months writing and illustrating his story for the movies. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Royal Mitchell, 428 Courtland street. He plans to complete his education at the University of Georgia and will continue as NYA art director.

Little Response To Navy Offer Is Shown Here

Rank of Ensign in Reserve Possible in Only Four Months.

The most amazing offer ever made by the United States navy is practically going begging, Lieutenant George C. Griffin, assistant personnel director in the United States Naval Reserve, said here yesterday.

The navy is offering ensigns' commissions in the naval reserve to young men who qualify, after only four months' training, one month of which is a sea cruise on a warship.

In emergency, young men so trained would enter the naval service with the same rank as new graduates of Annapolis, though Annapolis midshipmen obtain their ensigns' rank only after four years of schooling.

The requirements are fairly simple. Applicants must be native-born, male, unmarried and between the ages of 19 and 26 years. They must be in good physical health and must have had two years of college work, including some trigonometry. They must be of good repute in their community, as attested by two letters of recommendation from responsible citizens.

If accepted, their first duty will be aboard the U. S. S. Wyoming. This ship will leave New York shortly after July 10 on a 30-day training cruise where trainees will learn navy routine and navy discipline.

After the cruise chosen trainees will receive three months of classroom work aboard the training ship Illinois, or they may be sent to various training schools throughout the country. This training can be taken when it will fit most conveniently with their schooling or their jobs. During this time they will receive extensive instruction in ordnance, gunnery, navigation, seamanship and engineering.

Applicants interested may apply to the Naval Armory at Georgia Tech. Five thousand must be enlisted throughout the United States, and the response at the Atlanta office has been disappointing, Lieutenant Griffin said.

Freya Tells Fritz She Loves Hans; She Goes to the Grafin To Tell Her

By PHYLLIS BOTTOME.

SYNOPSIS.
Loyal followers of Hitler and the Nazi regime, Olaf and Emil von Rohn refuse to be present when their step-sister, Freya, is married to Hans, a Communist, who rescued her from a group of angry peasants on the Western front. Returning with Hans and her younger brother, Emil, from a visit to the zoo, Freya is amazed to find her stepbrothers and her aristocratic admirer, Fritz Maberger, waiting in Nazi uniform before the Rohn home. When the trio attack him, Hans bravely fights back, and it is only the appearance of Freya's mother, a gentle, German aristocrat married to Dr. Johann Roth, celebrated Jewish scientist, that stops the fight. Trying to make her forget this unpleasantness, Freya's parents send her on a vacation to the vast estate of the Maberger family, where friends—here Freya finds herself—artfully persuaded by Fritz, but when she comes home with Hans, she finds him far overhauled by the young Communist. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

INSTALLMENT XX.

Fritz stared at her, and Freya watched the reality die out of his eyes, till they darkened with reproach and self-love.

"I shall never forgive you!" he said angrily. "And it is all your fault! You are refusing the best I had to offer! And you are refusing me for a low, mountain peasant—beneath you even to think about! It is degrading to us both—and to all who have ever loved you! It makes me ashamed for you—and of you!"

"Then you should be glad I have refused you!" Freya exclaimed with equal anger. "For a woman you are ashamed of you could hardly wish for a wife. As for those who really love me—you have no right to answer for them. They will answer for themselves. And if they all condemn me, still it does not matter—for I have done nothing to be ashamed of. I have a respect for the man I love, and therefore I respect myself."

"Dam you both!" Fritz shouted at her in a sudden explosion of rage, and dashed headlong down the hillside into the shelter of the woods.

Freya looked after him for a long time, till the anger in her heart died slowly down. Her mind sank away from him altogether, and set into the lasting pain of Olaf's engagement. It was Olaf's marriage—not her refusal of Fritz—that would break up her life.

The Grafin laid her knitting down on her lap. She was knitting a baby's vest, with very soft, fleecy wool; and she always used particularly smooth and easy needles. Looking at the opening door, she shuddered slightly.

As it was such an exceptionally warm spring day, the Grafin was sitting in the big hall of the Schloss, by an open log fire. Still, she thought, Freya need not have flung the door so wide open, when she came in. "A ramshackle child," thought the Grafin. "All that is wanted of any woman is to have nice, quiet ways. I am glad that my Sophie—whatever else she may be guilty of—and unfortunately one never knows nowadays what the young do—was brought up to come in and out of a room as quietly as a cat. I shouldn't wonder if this noisy young creature makes Fritz a bad wife! But perhaps she will not marry him at all."

Although he was so sure that she will, Fritz is like his father, who always takes for granted that what he wants will happen, without taking any of the proper steps to bring it about. It would appear that such men are difficult to get on with—but this is not so—it is men who take steps to get what they want who begin to be dangerous—and when they take the right steps—though this seldom happens—they become very dangerous!" Freya crossed the hall in a few impetuous strides. The little Grafin, who disliked all swift and sudden movements, looked up at her, and blinked.

Her lips curved pleasantly, but her eyes, although they had blinked, never changed their expression. They resembled those of a cat that has made up its mind in what direction it is going, and will certainly, somehow or other, get there.

"Ah, my dear," the Grafin said, "a nice day, is it not—a slight draught from the door—but that is almost pleasant—good of you to shut it though! Where are the others?"

Freya sank down on a stool in front of the Grafin. She had never understood the Grafin, although Freya supposed her to be extraordinarily gentle and good; and this was the opinion of all the Grafin's acquaintances. Even her servants adored the Grafin, though they stood in some awe of her. Never did she raise her voice to them, nor did she exact strict attention as to where food went after it had once left the table—what happened behind doors—or even what took place through open windows. Should family complications occur, the Grafin never scolded, but she always sent troublesome servants serenely away. No one ever had a harsh word from the Grafin. Her servants did what she told them, and she always made her wishes kindly and pleasantly distinct, or else the servants immediately departed, treated to the last with the utmost consideration.

The famous Dowager Empress of China never suggested suicide to offensive members of her state more engagingly than the Grafin Maberger gave notice to her servants; she conferred upon the act of dismissal the charm of a welcome, but she had never been known—however heartless the repentence—to take a notice back.

"I think Olaf and Sophie are fishing," Freya said hesitatingly. "They went to the lake after lunch—and I—I took a walk by myself!" She faltered, and a tell-tale color flooded her face. The Grafin carefully observed Freya's confusion, although she proceeded to help the stupidly transparent girl out of it.

"A very pleasant, sensible thing to do," she said cordially. "I often take my walks by myself. Indeed, I prefer them alone. One does not lose one's breath while walking uphill, as one does when conversation is demanded of one. Besides, people with long legs walk too fast for me; and in my family all the legs (except those of Sophie, who dislikes exercise) are too long. You, my dear, walk very fast indeed. I fear I should find it most difficult to keep up with you!"

Freya frowned; a peculiarity in talking with the Grafin was that whenever you began to talk seriously or intended to do so, the Grafin, while retaining a seriousness of tone, reduced the subject itself to triviality.

Freya wanted to talk seriously. She had known the Grafin superficially all her life: loved her with uncritical enthusiasm, and believed her to be a fount of secret wisdom.

She took a minute—thinking how she could start afresh, and tap this secret fount of wisdom—and while Freya thought, she looked about her at the familiar things she never expected to see again.

The house was very still. A bar of late sunshine stretched low, across the hall; the rest of it was in shadow; but Freya's memories, as well as her eyes, pierced the shadowy vagueness; she knew what everything was and where it stood.

The Maberger had very few precious things; they had collected and left behind them through the centuries glass cases full of plaster fish; stuffed birds, heads of chamois, dotted about unevenly; suits of rusty armor, and many family portraits, inexpensively painted by mediocre artists. Here and there, the light caught a dash of scarlet from the painted tasseled hat of a cardinal; or gleamed upon a favourite weapon hung low upon the wall.

There had always been cardinals and warriors in the Maberger family, but all that was left of them were the red hats in the portraits, and the disused weapons on the walls. No Maberger had ever done anything very significant either with the hats or the weapons.

Until Freya spoke again, the Grafin, who was never idle, picked up her knitting and placidly went on with it.

"Fritz came after me," Freya forced herself at last to say haltingly against the silence, "he found me, though I hadn't meant him to!"

"He has always liked you very much," the Grafin observed pleasantly, "and he will not like you less, that you have grown prettier lately, and are not particularly fond of him. It is always strange to me how few young girls grasp the fact that nothing ever attracts a man so much, as a pretty girl thinking of someone else!"

Freya flushed again, this time deeply.

"How do you know I'm thinking of someone else?" she demanded, fixing the Grafin with her clear grey eyes, behind which nothing had ever been successfully hidden.

"I did not know it," assured the Grafin tranquilly, "until you yourself told me just now. I merely suspected it, because one is usually prepared to fall in love with a tolerable young man, who has a passion for one, unless one is already in love with another tolerable young man, whom one does not believe to be indifferent. One must at least suppose a bird to be in the bush before one drops the bird in the hand! Such forethought is but natural in the least intelligent young person and I always expect natural things to take place."

"I admit that I am occasionally disappointed, because some young girls and young men prefer to be unnatural—they think it is less trouble—which it is not—or else more interesting—though if it is interesting at all, it is so only to themselves. A marriage that comes off, for instance, must be more interesting—even to the participants—than a marriage that does not—nichts wahr? Fritz is, of course, very natural—so, thank God, is Sophie—though she is quieter about it. I am glad that she and Olaf have at last made up their minds. I shall look upon their marriage as a good match for both of them!"

"But," stammered Freya, "what makes you think they are engaged? Fritz has only just told me it happened at the picnic—and you weren't there! I don't believe anyone else knows!"

"I am never at picnics," the Grafin said with a faint but perceptible shudder. "The ground was not meant to be sat upon in its raw state, I feel sure, and I prefer my food without either caterpillars or draughts! Still, picnics have their uses for the young and I had expected that with all that space about them, Olaf would probably bring matters to a head. Nor would it surprise me very much, my dear, should you tell me that Fritz had proposed to you—and that you had refused him—since had you accepted him, you would scarcely have come indoors by yourself to talk to me. The young rarely seek the old, unless things do not come off. Nor is it altogether surprising that old people have learned to put two and two together, since these matters come up fairly often, with similar results, in any lifetime. Your mother, it is true, seldom makes observations upon the conduct of those about her, and if you will allow me to say so, I think it is a pity, since without these little exertions in spiritual acuity one does not arrive at who has stolen the spoons."

QUESTIONS—Four contenders from the studio audience will be given $10 each as they step up to the microphone during "Uncle Jim's Question Bee," over WGST at 7 o'clock tonight.

They may end up with more cash than they started with, or less. But, in any case, there'll be plenty of fun and excitement as they try to answer questions taken from Uncle Jim's high silk hat. Low scorers will get a chance to pick up a few extra dollars at the end of the program when a series of rapid-fire questions are asked during the time it takes to blow up a balloon until it bursts.

MUSICAL—Lovely Jane Froman, the singing star, will broadcast two songs when she makes a guest appearance with Raymond Paige and his orchestra on the Musical Americana program when this show shifts from Pittsburgh to New York and from Thursday to Tuesday, beginning over WAGA at 8 o'clock tonight.

Miss Froman will sing "Summer Time," by George Gershwin, and "Begin the Beguine," by Cole Porter.

The program includes: "The Carrots," by Vincent Youmans. "Summertime," from "Porgy and Bess," by George Gershwin and DuBose Heyward. "The Breeze and I," by T. Camarata. An adaptation from Luciano's "Andalucia." "Humoresque," by Anton Dvorak. "Begin the Beguine," by Cole Porter. "Hungarian Rhapsody," by David Popper. Cello solo. "The American Way," by Buddy Brierley and Bob Emmerich.

INFORMATION—"Professor" Jimmy (Schnozzle) Durante, currently wowing 'em in the musical show, "Keep Off the Grass," will face Mr. Fadiman as guest expert on "Information, Please" over WAGA at 7:30 o'clock tonight. Durante, whose previous appearance on the popular quiz show was at the last minute, has been industriously studying, memorizing the World's Almanac in preparation for his debut with the intellectuals. He claims "dat he will show up dose guys who tink dey know all de answers."

Along with "Professor" Durante will be the two standbys, Franklin P. Adams and John Kieran; also Christopher Morley, who has made frequent appearance on the program. Clifton Fadiman, as usual, will pass the stumbers out to the experts.

MILLER—In Chicago for a stay of several weeks after a trek of thousands of miles through the east and middle west, Glenn Miller and his orchestra will offer torrid swing numbers in their quarter-hour program over WGST at 9 o'clock tonight.

Marion Hutton and Ray Eberle are the program's featured singers.

WAGA 8:00-8:30 P. M.

Cuba Mining Expands Mining interests of Cuba have asked the Havana authorities to afford them facilities for the further development of enterprises stimulated by wartime demand. Among the measures asked for by the miners, headed by Dr. Gustavo Porta, is exemption from payment of tariff on all machinery imported by them. Dr. Porta has informed Secretary of Treasury Montoulieu that the war will considerably aid development of the industry. He cited the fact that the demand for manganese has increased 200 per cent. Important veins of iron ore have been found recently in Oriente Province.

Mended Royal Socks Katharina Schrafft, the actress who won the heart of Emperor Franz Joseph of Austria and who died recently in Vienna, reigned for 30 years as the uncrowned empress. Franz Joseph was one of the unhappiest men of his time. His wife, Empress Elizabeth, and his only son and heir, Rudolf, were assassinated. Kathi would listen to court gossip, laugh at the royal jokes, even mend the Emperor's socks. Statesmen, generals and bankers were eager to find favor with her. After the World War, the actress was no longer rich, as she had invested her money in Austrian war bonds, and she was compelled to sell her famous jewelry, the gifts of Franz Joseph.

Your Own Horoscope for Today By ALICE DENTON JENNINGS, Noted Atlanta Chirologist

What today means to you if you were born between:

March 21st and April 19th (ARIES)—The morning hours and until 1:30 p. m. favor progressive ideas and affairs of an unusual nature. The period favors laying out plans, drawing up specifications and contracts. Between 2:30 p. m. and 4:45 p. m. use special caution in all matters, and be certain that your hastiness does not overcome your judgment. After 4:45 p. m. and through the afternoon and evening favors matters having to do with the sunny side of life—such as social affairs, matters of adornment, artistic ideas.

April 20th and May 20th (TAURUS)—Before 10:25 a. m. does not favor speculative ideas. Between 10:25 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. favors interests pertaining to food and hygiene. After 2:30 p. m. favors sticking to routine matters.

May 21st and June 20th (GEMINI)—Previous to 1:14 p. m. favors matters of a public nature. After 1:14 p. m. and throughout the afternoon and evening, avoid radical tendencies. The period does not favor new ventures.

June 21st and July 22nd (CANCER)—Previous to 1:14 p. m. favors contacting important and influential people. Between 1:14 p. m. and 4:30 p. m. favors attending to old matters. The remainder of the day and evening favors making new plans.

July 23rd and August 22nd (LEO)—An excellent day for attending to financial details and making new plans. The best vibrations of the day operate between 2:30 p. m. and 8:15 p. m.

August 23rd and September 22nd (VIRGO)—From 8:44 a. m. to midnight favors dealings with women, artistic matters, or dealings with the public where finances are involved, contracts to be signed or where diplomacy is needed, are especially favored until 3:31 p. m. From 3:31 p. m. and throughout the afternoon and evening matters of pleasure, courtship and entertainment are favored.

January 20th and February 18th (AQUARIUS)—The entire day and evening favor property interests, real estate, affairs that have been hanging fire for some time and contacts with old and established people and concerns.

February 19th and March 20th (PISCES)—During the entire day and until 8:21 p. m. favors work that is of an original nature and that requires independence of action. The influences after 8:21 p. m. are not so favorable.

NEW YORK, July 2.—(P)—A few industrial and utility issues strove to exert a rising motive to the bond market today against general trading inertia.

Traders were unwilling to make large commitments without some indication of probable developments in the war.

The result was that only $3,650,000, face value, of bonds changed hands compared with $5,360,500 last Friday. It was one of the smallest sessions since last August.

The result was that only $3,- 66,200, face value, of bonds changed hands compared with the smallest sessions since last August.

United States governments, already bringing prices far above par, gained as much as 3-4 point trades or one or two bonds.

Italian and German bonds, invariably active dealings, slipped, the former dropping as much as 10 points in some instances. Among a few foreign issues to advance were those of Argentina and her capital, Buenos Aires.

HAIL AND FAREWELL

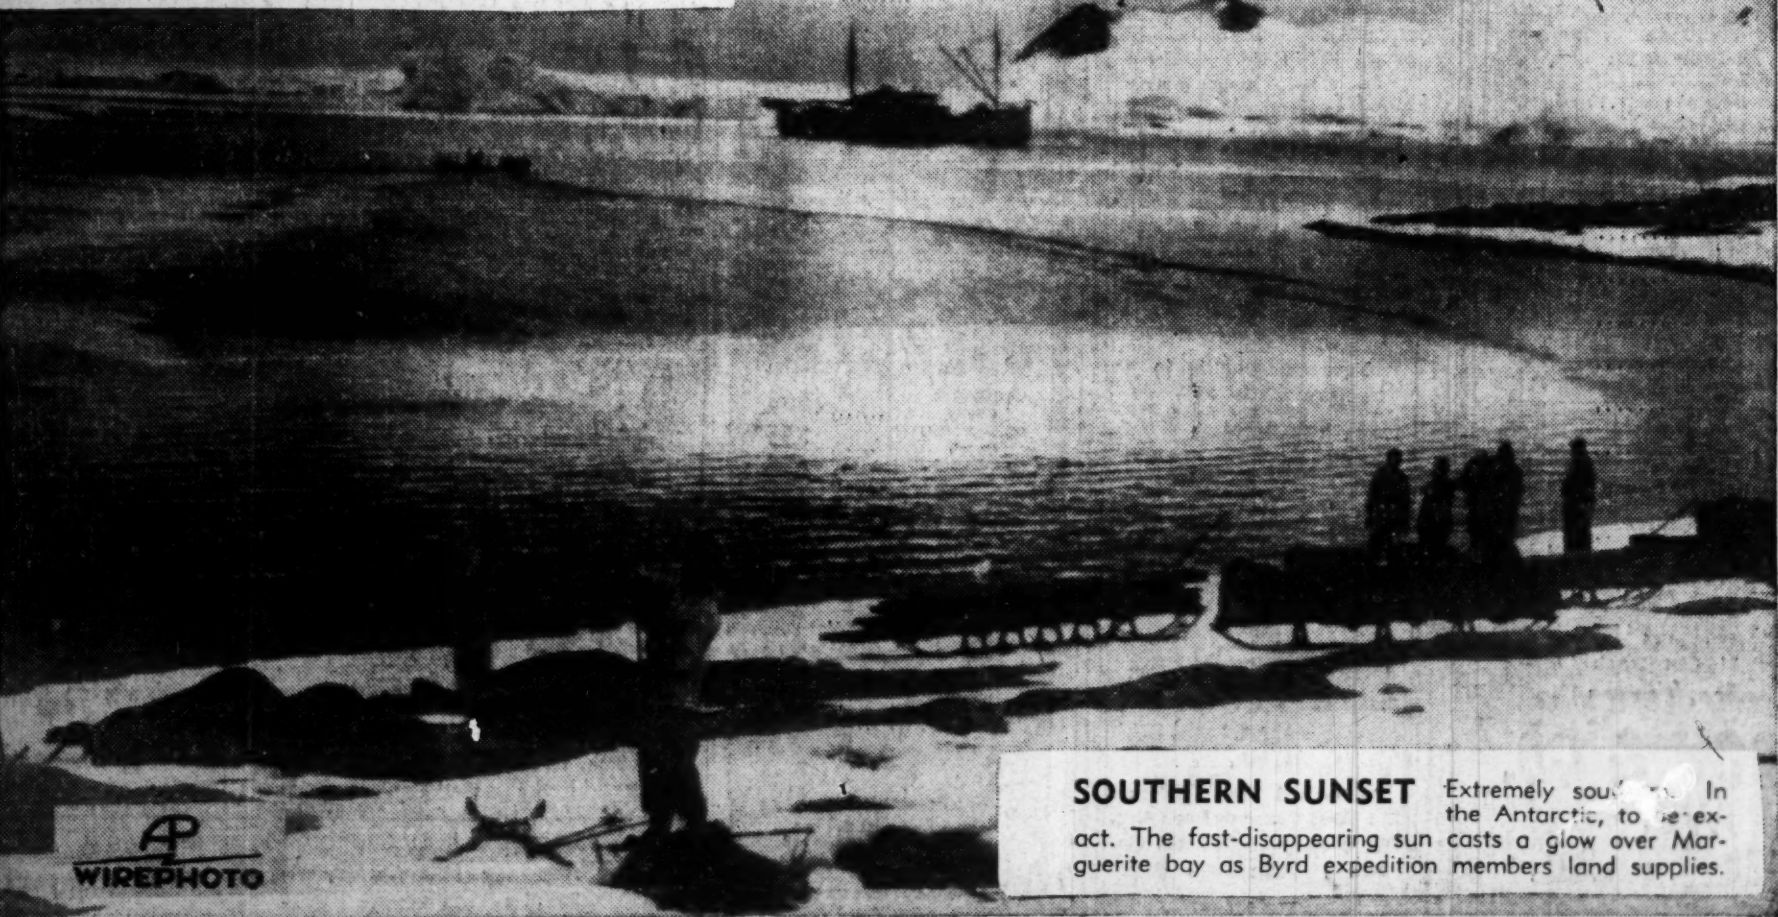

Hail to the sun that is America, and farewell to storm that lies behind them. Four British youngsters get their first glimpse of New York, which probably will be their haven for the duration of Europe's war. The tots were among 60 under 15 years aboard the incoming liner.

WINGED TANK

This composite photo gives an idea of how a four-ton tank could be transported by plane.

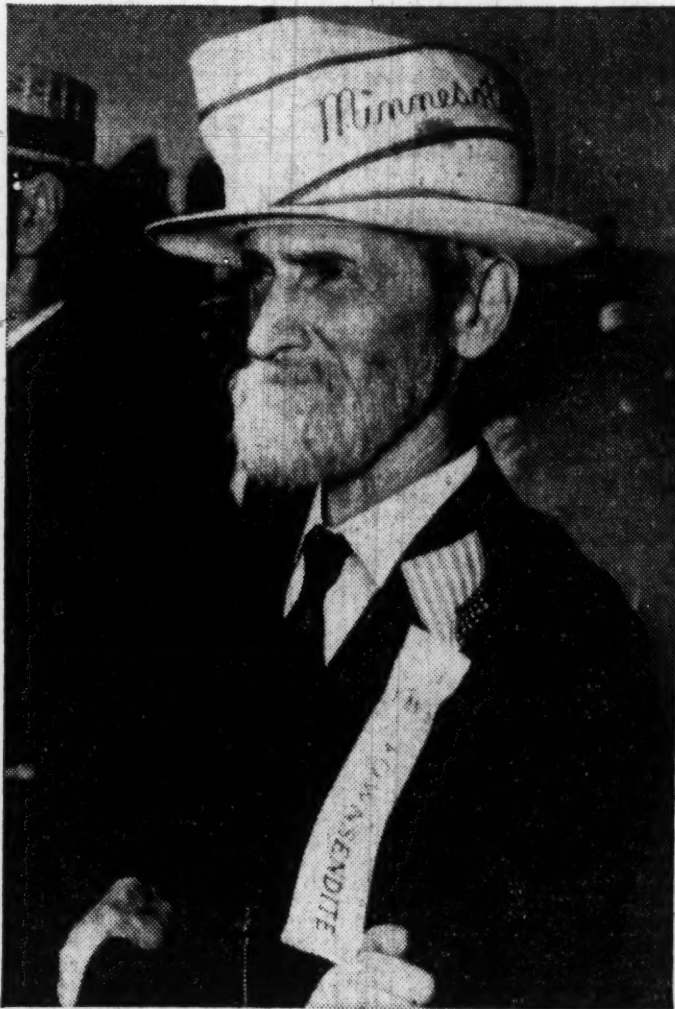

Washington military experts say such a feat, attributed to the Russians, could be done easily, as indicated.

HERE'S HOW

a baby four-ton tank for transport by airplane would look. The composite picture above it was used in 1936 to illustrate an announcement by J. Walter Christie, American tank developer, that he was on the threshold of designing such a winged weapon. Russia employs aerial tanks.
